Where go the years?
But moments fleet, uncertain
That swiftly speed and disappear
From mortal view?
Where go the years?
To seek the darkness and to hide
Within the dust of old hall clocks?
Or ride forgotten moonbeams
To the sky?

Foreword

TO THE CLASS OF 1940 HAS COME THE SIGNAL HONOR OF PREPARING THE SEV-ENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY EDITION OF THE SHORTRIDGE ANNUAL. THE CLASS FOR FOUR YEARS HAS LIVED ITS PART IN THE LARGER PATTERN CALLED SHORTRIDGE. IT HAS SOUGHT TO COMBINE THE TRADITIONS THAT THE YEARS HAVE BROUGHT WITH THE ACTIVITIES OF THE PRESENT. SOME-THING OLD AND SOMETHING NEW WILL EVER BE THE CHARM THAT IS SHORTRIDGE.

Dedication

THE CLASS OF 1940 PAUSES IN ITS CELEBRATION OF THE SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF SHORTRIDGE HIGH SCHOOL TO HONOR THE MEMORY OF ALL WHOSE LIVES HAVE INFLUENCED THE SCHOOL. TO THE CONSTANT FLOW OF YOUTH THAT HAS KEPT THE INSTITUTION EVER YOUNG, EVER CHANGING, THIS ANNUAL IS DEDICATED. IT HONORS THEIR LOYALTY AND DEVOTION IN WHICH ARE ROOTED SHORTRIDGE IDEALS FOR ALL THE COMING YEARS. . . JOSEPH GOLDSMITH

Round and Round it Goes Where it Stops . . .

A collage of black and white candid photographs capturing various moments of school life. The images are arranged in a non-linear fashion, overlapping and showing different scenes. Key elements include: students sitting at desks and writing; a student drinking from a cup; a football game in progress on a field with a large crowd in the stands; a student eating at a table; a teacher or adult interacting with a student; two female students smiling at the camera; a group of students gathered around a table outdoors; a school bus and a Volkswagen Beetle parked on a street; and a student reading a book.

The Junior Class officers, elected November 7, 1938, were Kenneth Smock, president; Joan Buschmann, vice-president; Pat Failing, secretary; Victor Jose, treasurer; Peggy Trusler, Vaudeville chairman. The Student Council representatives were Ann Bishop, Ann Shaw, David Savidge, and Tom Purky. Alternates, Susan Alvis and Ben Hitz. The pin and ring committee was composed of the Junior officers and Marjorie Geupel, Fred Maynard, Kurt Vonnegut, and Althea O'Hara.

The winning act of the Junior Vaudeville was, "Rhythm and Rhyme of '39", sponsored by Miss Kathryn Thompson and Walter Geisler. The co-chairmen were Lucy Peterson and Betty Staudt. The other act chairmen were Elinor Hess, Georgia Douglass, and Pat Denham; Mary Lucas; Nick Smyrnis and Carol Hawkins; Ben Hitz and Kurt Vonnegut; Teddy Beall; and Alice Robinson and Betty Jean Ruth.

The intermission acts consisted of an organ solo by Joe Lewis; Dick Carson and his musical woodpile; Natalie Ratliff, Suzanne Queisser and Margery Little, accordionists; a band number; and Allen Guthrie and Barbara Moore, dancers.

The individual awards went to Shirley Pierce and Dick Pierce; Dick Carson received special recognition. The success of the Vaudeville was due to the concentrated efforts of Peggy Trusler, chairman, and Mrs. Nell Merrick Thomas and Enoch Burton, class sponsors.

On Honor Day, May 19, 1939, the Junior officers presented trophies to the Seniors who had achieved a perfect "A plus" record.

Senior Student Council representatives were Ann Shaw, Mary Glossbrenner, Marvin Borman, and Kurt Vonnegut. Alternates were Peggy Trusler, Tom Purky, and David Baerncopf.

Fat Failing, secretary.

The 1940 Senior Class elected officers on November 8. The successful candidates were Walt Frehofer, president; Ann Bishop, vice-president; Susan Alvis, secretary; Fred Maynard, treasurer; and Joe Goldsmith, Annual editor. Two representatives were later elected from each Senior Home Room to discuss class activities. They were Marvin Borman, Bette Bowes, Sidney Cahn, Margery Clark, Warren Fletcher, Pat Fletcher, Bob Hall, Mary Glossbrenner, Elinor Hess, Barbara Jones, Betty Kerbox, Don King, Betsy Medlicott, Tom McDowell, Althea O'Hara, Jack O'Brien, Betty Rusie, Dave Savidge, Dave Shryer, Martha Jean Sims, Nick Smyrnis, Mary Ann Strawmeyer, Sally Walker, Alberta Wells, and Jean Wells.

The Christmas party was held December 21, in the school gym. Mr. Nipper, acting as Santa Claus, presented gifts to various seniors. There was a small floor show of Shortridge talent, and Nick Craciunoiu provided the dance music.

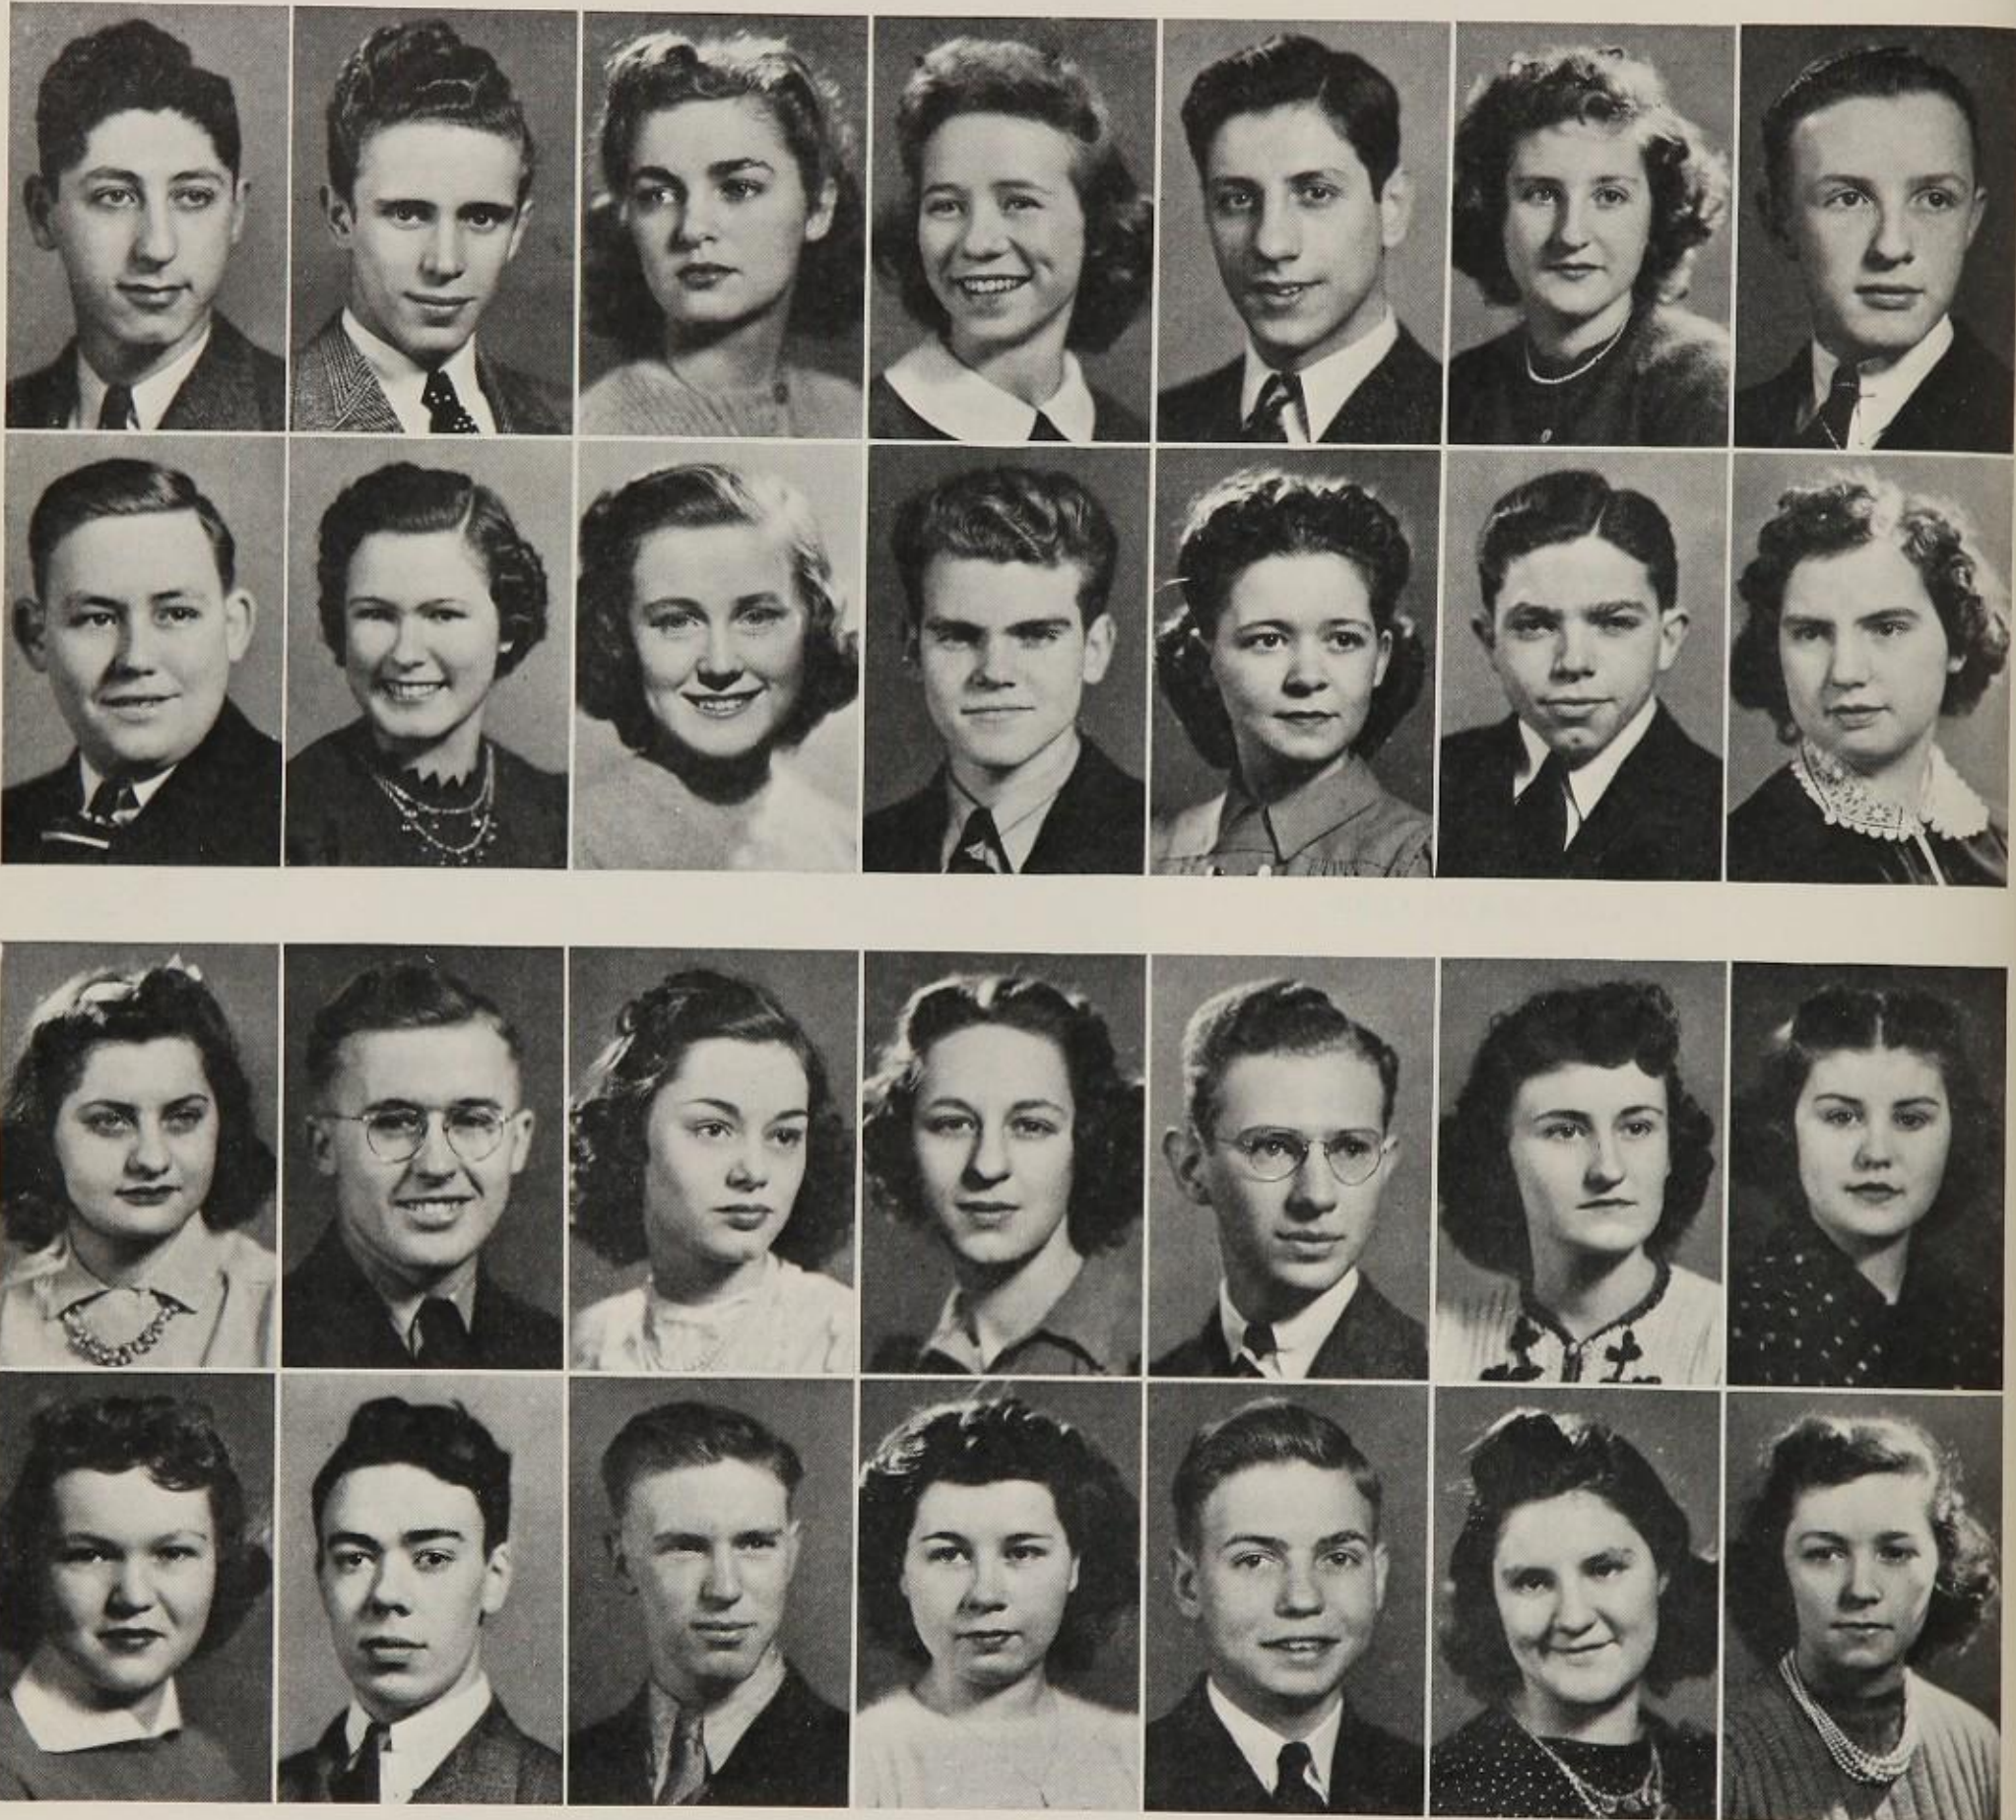

The colors committee announced that the class colors were blue and silver. The Bretzman Studio was selected to make the Annual pictures. Class day officers were Nick Smyrnis, giftorian; Ann Shaw, historian; Kenny Smock, will-maker; and Marge Geupel, prophet.

The Senior Play, "Stage Door," was presented on May 17 in Caleb Mills Hall. The leading roles were taken by Helen White and John Spitznagel. Marilyn Clark, Gregg Bertram, Margery Clark, Peggy Trusler, Robert Shelhorn, Alberta Wells, and Janet Johnson played the supporting roles. "Stage Door" was directed by Miss Eleanor Dee Theek.

On Sunday, June 2, impressive vesper services were held in the auditorium. Class Day was held on June 4. On Wednesday night, June 5, in Cadle Tabernacle, the class was graduated in a beautiful and dignified ceremony.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Under the sponsorship of Miss Minnie Lloyd, the Shortridge National Honor Society has completed an active and worthwhile year. On the basis of scholarship, leadership, character, and service, seventy-nine students were elected to the society by members of the faculty. The chairman and the faculty sponsor of group A were Marvin Borman and Mrs. Hope Nevitt; of group B, Margery Geupel and Miss Nora Thomas; and of group C, Mary Glossbrenner and Mrs. Gertrude Weathers. The activities of the club included tutoring of students, compiling records of Honor Society members of 1928 and 1930, and sponsoring a basketball game between the lettermen of the varsity and several members of the faculty. Mary Glossbrenner was in charge of the alumni records committee. Carl Steeg and Fred Maynard managed the publicity and business details of the game, the proceeds of which were used for the most part in a gift to the school. The initiation was held May 3 in the Shortridge library. In addition to the initiates, parents and faculty members attended. On April 27, groups A and B had charge of a party at the home of Marjorie Geupel. Late in the spring of 1940, a picnic was given by group C. The officers are president, David Baernkopf, and secretary-treasurer, Mary Margery Smead.

The first free high school in Indianapolis, the Central High School, was organized in the old County Seminary building in University Square during the school year of 1853-54. Mr. E. P. Cole was the principal.

Supt. George B. Stone said in his report to the Board of Trustees in 1856-57, "Provision must also soon be made for the high school. The old dilapidated county seminary, which is now used, must doubtless be vacated ere long . . . The erection of a suitable building would do very much to promote the interest in this school and would have an influence which would be felt in every part of the school system." This same report states the enrollment of the school to be seventy-six girls and seventy-nine boys. This institution, the ancestor of Shortridge, was one of the first free co-educational high schools in the United States.

Although much of the work was on the level of the eighth grade, there were classes in history, arithmetic, composition, declamation, physiology, physical geography, natural philosophy, meteorology, algebra, geometry, chemistry, Latin, and Greek.

Like the "seminary boys" before them, the high school lads found great pleasure in the sports of the spacious playground, now University Park. An old cut of the time shows the leading athletic activity, a strenuous "shinny" game in progress. This high school was closed in 1858 by the Indiana supreme court decision which said that it was unconstitutional for local government units to tax citizens for the maintenance of public high schools.

Mr. A. C. Shortridge was elected to the position of superintendent of the Indianapolis Schools in 1863. The next year, 1864, twenty-eight pupils were chosen by examination for their fitness to enter the first year of high school. The recognized Indianapolis High School was housed on the second floor of ward building No. 1 at the corner of Vermont and New Jersey Streets, under the supervision of Principal William A. Bell.

These quarters, which provided sixty seats, soon proved inadequate for the growing institution, and in 1867 it was moved to the old Second Presbyterian Church at the corner of Market Street and the Circle. This building also housed the school offices and an 8A grade. Although the high school remained here for a period of only five years, several Indianapolis citizens remember attending school in the old church where Henry Ward Beecher had delivered his famous sermons. The interior of the Circle was a well-kept grassy mound, formerly occupied by the governor's mansion, but now surrounded by a board fence and intersected by board walks from north to south and east to west. The property line was occupied by the home of William H. English and two or three other residences, Christ Church, the Old Plymouth Church, the Sentinel Building, the Journal Building, Wood's Livery Stable, the High School, and a few stores.

The pupils proved to be so unprepared for high school work that the first year was devoted to elementary subjects. From this building on the Circle came the first graduating class, that of 1869. The entire group, consisting of four boys and one girl, delivered to the proud audience in Morrison's Opera House five orations, entitled "We Stand Athirst," "Wonders," "Procrastination," "Light Houses," and "Sparks."

Lacking means of transportation, the pupils walked to school, some from great distances. Nearly all brought their lunches, although some of the boys ate in the restaurants about the Circle. The school day began each morning at 9:00 o'clock with scripture reading and prayer and closed at 3:30. The extracurricular activities and athletics had not yet attained an important place in school life.

All of the high school pupils took the same course, with the exception of two electives, Latin and German. The following is a list of subjects given in Superintendent Shortridge's report for 1868: reading, orthography, English grammar, rhetoric, arithmetic, German, Latin, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, natural philosophy, U. S. History, Universal History.

Other subjects which were taught from time to time were geology, astronomy, mental philosophy, music, art, penmanship, bookkeeping, Constitution of the United States and physical geography.

Although the school board, consisting of three members, was appointed by the city council, the citizens maintained a close supervision of the public schools through the device of school visitors. Two or more prominent citizens were assigned to each ward building and to the High School. It was their duty to visit the schools at regular intervals and see that the teachers were doing their duties and that the pupils were progressing in their work.

The high school grades were now recognized as a permanent part of the public school system and the increasing enrollment made necessary the purchase of a larger building.

In 1872 the board decided on the old building formerly occupied by the Baptist Female Seminary, located at the corner of Michigan and Pennsylvania streets. This was a large three story structure, flanked by wide porches which were connected by outside stairways. One of the graduates of the class of 1878, referring to the time when he first entered high school, wrote, "The building was old and patched and added to, with many mysterious little connecting halls and dark cubby-holes, so it was months before I could find my way about it."

The commencement of June, 1878, was typical of others of that period. A local paper said, "The commencement exercises of the tenth graduating class of the Indianapolis High School took place yesterday at Roberts Park Church, which as usual on such occasions, was crowded to its utmost capacity. The platform was adorned with a profusion of flowers, and the hundreds of bouquets scattered throughout the house, filled the atmosphere with fragrance." The exercises began at 10:00 o'clock in the morning, stopped for the noon hour, and began again at 2:30 p.m. Twenty-four members of the class read essays; two of them were in German. The class of 1880 was confronted with a very important and a very hotly debated question. The issue was whether each and every member of the class of sixty-five should speak at commencement or whether the number should be limited to fifteen.

In 1884 the building was too dangerous for further occupancy, and the enrollment of the school exceeded five hundred pupils. That year a new red brick structure was erected on the same site. While it was under construction, classes were held in two nearby churches. In this new building were born the Shortridge student publications which have played such an important part in the life of our school. "The Dawn," 1892, "The Silent Spectator," September, 1896, "The Weekly Comet," 1897, the senior class annuals, 1894, the "Daily Echo," September 26, 1898. Mrs. Lois Hufford said concerning the origin of the Echo, "In the summer of 1898, Fletcher Wagner, a senior, came with his grandfather, Mr. Calvin Fletcher, to ask Mr. Hufford to sanction the publishing of a daily paper in the high school. I have a vivid recollection of the trio on the garden walk, as for two hours, they debated this important question. Finally, Mr. Hufford consented to ask the co-operation of the School Commissioners. It was decided to christen the new paper "The Daily Echo." In the same building in 1887 was born the famous Senate, originally made up of the pupils in Miss Laura Donnan's government classes. The school commissioners changed the name of the Indianapolis High School to Shortridge in 1897.

The city was constantly faced with the problem of over-crowding of buildings. The Annex to old Shortridge failed to offer relief, and the new building at North and Pennsylvania Streets was occupied in 1904. The very structure itself marked the trend in education and in school architecture; a spacious gymnasium, liberal space for science laboratories, offices, a large auditorium, the first Caleb Mills Hall, and a cafeteria.

But the day came when this entire school plant, once declared to be too far north, was actually too far south. The old south half could no longer be considered adequate for a modern school; furthermore, it was rapidly being surrounded by a business district which gave it an unsatisfactory environment for educational pursuits.

The need for a new building was obvious to all and on November 3, 1927, the corner stone of the present Shortridge building was laid. In the copper vault within the corner stone is deposited the material record of our school's glorious past. There is also a letter of greeting to the Shortridgers of 2000 A.D., or thereafter. For we know that though time may destroy this, our sixth building, Shortridge itself will carry on.

....AND YOUTH

BY
CLARK

The pale, thin man in the cheap new suit kept his eyes lowered. Only when he skirted away from some object in his path did he raise them, and then from lack-luster depths suddenly a hot, licking flame seemed to leap. It was as though that flame was some spirit that the man felt would be quenched if released.

A dog came bounding through the park, and, reaching the man, pushed experimentally at his clenched hand. His body springing to life, the stranger caressed the moist, quivering nose of the animal and felt a chill in his own body. That was strange, for the sun was warm that day.

"Oh! There he is! Please don't let him get away!" Reaching the man with a flurry of skirts, sweater, and beribboned curls, a young girl smiled apologetically at him and knelt beside the dog, crooning, "Bad Tim! Naughty Tim! Shame on Tim!" The dog whined importantly, and his mistress, stroking his head, looked up at the man. She seemed to say, "I'm sorry — but he wouldn't obey me."

The man nodded in silent understanding. "You have a fine dog here," he remarked.

"He's a problem right now, though," the girl admitted. "Of all times to run away, Tim would pick today!" She turned toward the school building across the street. "I have to rehearse for the program, you know."

"Of course," the man acknowledged. She was the embodiment of hurried youth as she failed to wonder about the stranger's knowledge of the situation. She rushed on, "Now I'll have to take him back home, and what if I'm late to practice? — Oh, dear!" The problem was enormous to her.

"Look," the man began. "Let me keep the dog for you while you go to class. I have nothing to do until my train comes."

The girl exclaimed delightedly, "Oh, would you really? How nice! And Tim likes you, I can tell. Now if you really don't mind — Oh, thank you!" Turning, she waved, and, bounding vivaciously toward the school building, she disappeared, taking excitement with her.

The stranger gave his first evidence of humor; he chuckled softly. Just then two boys entered the park and came to a standstill before him. Looking with rapt attention at Tim, the tall serious one pushed his crew hat onto the back of his head and said abruptly, "Hey, Dave, look! That's Cynthia's dog, isn't it?"

The boy addressed as Dave said, "Yeah! Say, Mister, do you know Cynthia?"

The man raised his eyes and smiled whimsically, "I do now," he asserted. "I'm watching Tim until she can take him back home."

"Gee," Dave said. "You must have made a big hit!" He turned to the other boy. "Can you beat that, Jim? She lets this man take care of Tim when I can't even —", he stopped. "Sorry, I didn't mean to sound disrespectful."

"I understand what you mean perfectly," the man replied. "Do you go to that school over there?"

The tension relieved, Dave exclaimed, "Yes, sir! I wouldn't go anywhere else!"

"You like it?" the man questioned, rather perplexed by the obvious sincerity of the boy's tone.

"Bet your life, sir. There's nothin' like it."

Jim, the serious one, laughed a little self-consciously. "Dave's all bothered about things today, sir. The whole school is, I guess. We're having a sort of honor week, starting tomorrow and everybody's getting ready. I'm no sentimentalist, but I'll admit it does something to you. Loyalty is a nice feeling to have. We're taught things like that here, and by the time we're ready to graduate, we find it's sort of sunk in. If you know what I mean - - ." The boy finished as self-consciously as he had started.

"Does everyone feel the way you boys feel?" the stranger asked quietly.

Dave replied shortly, "Well — they should!"

Jim cut in, "Sure they do! Don't let them tell you anything else. About this time every year everybody in the school acts silly, and there's not one of them that doesn't sneak away by himself just to look at the campus and the buildings, for no good reason really, except that it means something to him. Just what it does mean nobody but that person will ever know. It's that important. You see, we stand for something here and we aren't afraid to show it. All the rest of the year we might not show it. We grumble and everything, but the feeling's there all the time. Little things let you know." Jim stopped suddenly, and turning almost defensively to the boy beside him, said, "Wait until you're in your last year, Dave; you'll know even more than now what I mean. I hope that years from now I'll have the same feeling over something else that I have about all this." His hand swept over the building and the grounds surrounding it and the trees walling the landscape. "It's good for a fellow to feel that way every now and then."

There was a pause that breathed a benediction - - then Dave slapped Jim on the back. "Well, Jim! I didn't know you had it in you! Hey, you're all right." He grinned broadly. A bell rang in the distance. Patting Tim's head, and slinging his arm across Jim's shoulder, Dave teased, "Come on, old orator! Walk to class with me. - - - Good-bye," he called to the stranger, and started on. But Jim told him to wait and turned back to the man.

"Say, if you'd like to wait until I come back, I could show you around the grounds - - - that is, if you'd like."

A light came into the stranger's eyes as he looked up, but he only said, "Thank you. I should feel quite honored. But I'm afraid I'll be gone by then."

"Oh, sure! Well, goodbye." Both boys waved and with a laugh, set off whistling.

Left alone, the man felt himself shaking. "Imbecile," he muttered. "Because a school girl trusts you with her dog, and a brick building inspires a boy to confidences, are no reason for this! Not from you, anyway!" He twisted his mouth ruefully, and beckoning to the dog to follow, made his way across the park to gain another view of the three story building.

"So those four walls can make kids proud and unafraid and eager for the future, and can make them anxious to hold on to what they feel. Maybe that's what more of us need — lots more of us." He sighed, and taking a seat on one of the nearby benches, he let his thoughts wander. So much within him was crying for release that the man was not wakened from his musings until the dog in front of him whined softly.

"What's the matter, Tim?" the man asked. "Is it your mistress you see?"

Cynthia sped down the walk and shouted to them. Tim rushed to her, and taking him by the collar, the girl approached the waiting stranger.

"How was the rehearsal?" he asked.

"Oh, perfect! Everything went just right. I wasn't a bit late, thanks to you."

"Your dog was just right, too," the man replied, and his smile brought an answering one to her face.

"Would you like to come to see our program?" she asked suddenly.

"If I'm at all able to, I should feel privileged." He bowed as he said this, and the girl was obviously pleased.

"Well, goodbye," she cried, in sudden bashful confusion. "Come on, Tim!" And off they went, dog and girl - - and youth.

The stranger waved to her retreating back, and turned again to the school building. "You teach Youth and Youth teaches others," he murmured. "Something about you and your bricks and what these kids say you stand for, make a stranger want to start all over again. You change plans. Right now you've made me rearrange a lot of ideas — and at no small inconvenience. But you and your Jims and Daves and Cynthias win." He turned away, and started down the path. From the open window came the sound of the singing students. The notes filled the air and halted the man's progress. He faced the building, and oblivious to everything else, he suddenly raised his hand in salute. As the notes died away, the hand thrust into his pocket came in contact with a small object, and he withdrew it to look at the only thing to which he had clung in spite of pawnshops and all those months of being locked away up there - - a Phi Beta Kappa key. Now he knew why.

Squaring his shoulders and throwing back his head, he laughed heartily for the first time in years, and the flame leapt up and out of him.

FROM JEERS TO CHEERS . . .

IN FOUR YEARS

by WITT HADLEY

On the average of five or six Friday afternoons per fall, some thousand high school students gather to watch a football game in which their school is one of the contestants. During the winter the same crowd will follow its team's progress on the basketball court. This group is roughly divided into four classes.

We contend that these four classes correspond exactly with the four years of high school, namely: freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior. However, we prefer that they be referred to as Classes I, II, III, and IV.

Class I embraces members of the student body who are known, with no little disrespect, to other students as freshmen. Class I members attend their first athletic contest after some overbearing, superior-looking junior has approached them in their home room with, "You want to buy a ticket to the football game on Friday?" Sometimes shrewd and outspoken agents do everything but grab the 9B by the collar and growl, "Where's the money for the ticket?" You can see that this puts Class I member in a very meek condition, and as a result he will sit throughout the entire contest on the following Friday, not saying a word. He will even be content to pay ten cents for a Coca-Cola (he has not felt familiar enough to use the word coke yet) and not get a nickel back on the bottle. The poor, though colorful, student does not know enough, unless he is of the under-under-classman intelligentsia that has played the rugged sport before, to yell of his own volition; he only yells when the person behind him does.

Now, at the next home game we find the Class I member adding a little more to the support of the team. Just last Monday, with quaking legs (but a brave, brave heart) he approached the formidable ticket agent and said in a small voice, "I'll purchase a ticket to next Friday's game, please."

At this the agent smiled broadly, quit talking to "that pretty girl with the yellow hair" (as the freshman puts it) and brought forth the ticket. This wonderful piece of cardboard amuses the Class I member greatly. He finds no end of pleasure in turning it over and over — reading every bit of printing he can find on it. Perhaps it is the color that attracts his attention.

The Class I member is, on the whole, very quiet at all times, and even during the basketball season (by this time he has bought a season book) he has not much to say. Of course, there are many things that must course through his little mind, but he is happy to sit and look around at the seniors, dreaming of the day when he, too, can enjoy so much sophistication. A little more ego is added to the personality of the freshman when he can say to the ticket agent, "I have a season book!" At which the agent retreats to talk to "that pretty girl with the yellow hair."

Comes the sectional; Class I has heard that there will be sixteen teams playing out at the Tech gym on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. In addition, he finds that, if he buys a ticket, he will be excused from classes on Friday! The thought of this daring escapade thrills him so much that he empties piggy bank to the extent of one hundred fifty pennies to attend this exhibition.

And after the track season is over and the semester is about to close, comes the time when you hear him say, "Ah, today I am Class II!"

The Class II member, however, is not quite as colorful as he was as a Class I member. He has attained a certain air of near sophistication and if he has not already bought a season book, he actually asks the ticket agent for a ticket. He even feels that he is old enough to speak to "that pretty girl with the yellow hair." He attends the tilt and applauds and cheers loudly, attracting the attention of everyone around him; yet it is very rare, on any occasion, to see this class member disagree with officials. The Class II member views the opposing team supporters, if any of them hoot or boo, with a cold and stony eye.

In rapid succession he attends basketball games, city tourney, and sectionals. This year he begins to predict, and often, to older students' amazement and irritation, hits high percentages in the noble art of prognostication.

Ah, happy day when he becomes Class III. Now he can throw off the cloak of timidity and stalk about the school with a self-sure attitude. He begins to talk to "that pretty girl with the yellow hair" and one thing leads to another until he discovers that she is merely a classmate in disguise. In this year he acquires the habit of bleacher refereeing and takes great delight in sitting and mumbling to himself if things do not go quite right. Very few people can tell that he is in condition unhappy at the moment. He has many friends, all of whom must be informed of his existence at the encounter. This is done by wild yells and the waving of arms to attract attention; the more assured cases may use the fingers to whistle at their object.

Most of the noise raised at the games comes from Class III. He delights in making the ears of the person in front of him curl with sound waves. It is also during this time that he learns the use of confetti and streamers. As a result of his discovery, the eyes, ears, nose, throat, mouth, hair, and back of the person in front of him is covered with any small piece of paper that happens to be in the immediate vicinity.

Class IV, the senior, to all other classes is a high and exalted rank. (This has been obtained only through numerous trials and tribulations, and only after years of hard work, making acquaintances, and trying to get a date with "that pretty girl with the yellow hair.") An illustrious member of Class IV, now in complete control of all facilities, sweeps in with "that pretty girl with the yellow hair" under his arm but two minutes before the game begins. Far, far back in one corner sits a new Class I specimen, aghast at the goings on. He closely watches Class IV and date. They sit at the far end of the gym. They talk with a few friends before the game gets under way. When the intermission comes, and our little freshman is riveted with horror in a corner, the senior gets up, walks out, gets a drink, comes back, and sits down. "Such poise," thinks Class I, "such grace. Shall I ever be able to attain ease?"

Then to top it all off, and to Class I's utter amazement, the senior and his girl friend get up and walk out TWO MINUTES before the game is finished. Oh, horror of horrors. Think of it, walking out with all those people looking at you! The rest of the game is lost as the freshman dreams of the day three years hence when perhaps he can muster the courage to meet this test of tests, this proving of complete disregard for what others think or see, this nonchalant exit as he dangles from his arm some "pretty girl with yellow hair."

ROUSSEAU McCLELLAN

A gentle-woman by nature, a scientist and naturalist by training, a lover of boys and girls by instinct, Miss McClellan became one of the greatest teachers that any school, anywhere, has had the good fortune to have on its staff. For Shortridge High School and hundreds of boys and girls in the city, her passing is a tragic blow. She belongs to that group of distinguished teachers that gave to the schools of Indianapolis the distinction that they have had for many years. She was a pioneer in the field of Nature Study in the public schools. For some years she was an instructor in the Indianapolis Normal School, and supervised the teaching of Nature Study in the grades. This she did in addition to her duties in Shortridge. She had something that the pupils of Agassiz had — the seeing eye and the understanding heart. Her passionate love of nature and its creatures fired the imagination of thousands of young people and lead many of them into careers of life-long appreciation and love of the wonders of nature. She led them out to see that "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth His handiwork."

To her older associates she was a delightful companion, to the younger members of her staff a wise counselor and guide, to her disciples an inspiring leader and to all a true and steadfast friend.

On the campus at Shortridge is a little grove of trees that shall be dedicated to her as a sanctuary. It will be carpeted with wild flowers that she loved. Among the branches of the stately trees will be the nests of her feathered friends. As the morning light appears, from their little throats, as from a choir invisible, will come notes of song dedicated to her who was their friend, and in the evening the mournful note of the turtle dove will be for her a requiem.

To her intimate friends and associates she was affectionately known as Miss Mac. Like the little boy in the story of another great teacher by whose side Miss McClellan has every right to stand, smiling through our tears we say, "Good-bye, Miss Mac."

ELIZABETH VAWTER

I miss, my dear, the sparkle of your eyes,
Brown eyes — so deep and full of mystery!
Wide scholarship behind them;
constancy
To the appointed task; yet, childhood-wise,
Ready for play; companioning the smile
That went and came — half-hidden,
tremblingly
Waiting the chance to spring, surprisingly,
Into full joy of laughter, free of guile!

You loved all fine things, delicate and true:
Friendship, good art, and innocent
childhood graces;
The trust of pets, and Home awaiting you;
Great books, old china, dear and
beautiful faces;
Travel, improvement; hills and trees and skies!
Ocean's vast majesty enchained your
eyes!
And we, as others who must fold the hands
Of those they love, hope, that in deathless lands,
Yet fairer, we may meet, in happier guise!

— Mary H. Murray Vawter.

Those who had the privilege of intimate friendship with Miss Elizabeth Vawter found her to be a person of rare personal charm and endearing loyalty to her friends. Her unusually retiring disposition hid from many people who knew her many of the delightful personal qualities so much admired by those who knew her intimately. She was one of those rare courageous souls who, when necessary, suffered in silence and bore the tragedies of life with stoical courage. She was devoted to her profession; she not only prepared herself thoroughly in the schools of this country but she made several trips abroad in order to widen her knowledge of the French language which she loved and to make herself more proficient in teaching it to her classes.

ANNUAL STAFF

Eight members of the faculty have proved invaluable in the construction of this, the 1940 Annual. The task of various editors was rendered considerably easier by their advice and suggestions.

Mrs. Mary Dye Beach and Charles J. Wilkerson were in charge of the literary work. John R. Kuebler co-ordinated the publication. Joel Hadley was class sponsor and general director of Annual activities. George Crossland and C. L. Morrison sponsored the business staff. Miss Jane Messick supervised the art work on the yearbook. Robert C. Grubbs and H. H. Siemers were the photography sponsors, and Harold F. Irby directed the printing.

Assisting Joe Goldsmith, editor-in-chief, with the 1940 Shortridge yearbook were ten staff heads. Victor Jose, business manager, had the responsibility for publicity and sales. Peggy Trusler, editor of the literary staff, managed the competition for the story, essay, and poem published in the Annual. Barbara Jones and Althea O'Hara arranged the schedule for group pictures and individual Senior pictures.

Summaries of the activities of each school organization during the year were the duty of the club staff, headed by Marott Sinex. Boys' sports were handled by Tom Purky, and girls' sports by Martha Kirby. The art staff was in charge of Jane Bastian. Dave Baerncopf and his staff were responsible for the Senior liners. Judith Redwine and Sue Mellett wrote the legends for the yearbook. Pat Failing did the rewriting as copy editor and Joy Higdon was proof editor. Joe Goldsmith co-ordinated the efforts of these various staffs to give the student body the seventy-fifth anniversary edition of the Shortridge Annual.

ANNUAL SPONSORS

EDITORIAL STAFF

The following list indicates the editors and sponsors who have been responsible for this year's issues under the direction of Charles J. Wilkerson, editorial manager:

MONDAY'S

TUESDAY'S

WEDNESDAY'S

Peggy Trusler, Marott Sinex, Sidney Cahn, Elaine Nichol; sponsor, Miss Margaret Montgomery.

THURSDAY'S

FRIDAY'S

Martha Jean Sims, Marvin Borman, Alberta Welis, Jean Wells; sponsors, Miss Virginia Fout, Miss Mary Glenn Hamilton.

PRESS

The Press Club is an organization of all the members of the five staffs of the Shortridge Daily Echo. The chief activity of the past year has been centered in the meetings, which, though not held with strict regularity, were designed to be interesting and profitable to the members. The programs of the club have served to unify the work done on the daily publications. Often meetings have been open forum discussions; at other times speakers were brought from the staffs of the various local papers. Barbara Jones and David Baernkopf, members of the club, addressed the group concerning their experiences at the summer sessions of the Northwestern School of Journalism. Bob Stranahan, sports writer on the Indianapolis Star, was the speaker at one session. Everett C. Watkins, Washington correspondent to the Indianapolis Star, gave practical advice to the aspiring journalists. Charles J. Wilkerson, head of the English department, is the sponsor.

Officers: President, David Savidge; Secretary, Barbara Jones.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Now in its forty-first year of publication, the Shortridge Daily Echo has provided journalistic and editorial experience for a large number of students. Each day of the week a different staff of editors is responsible for the publication of the Echo, "The First American High School Daily".

The supply of beginning reporters is furnished by try-out classes, directed by student editors on each Echo staff. Try-outs are taught how to prepare and cover stories in any field of the Echo. Various positions on the Echo staff toward which the reporters work are those of feature editor, who is responsible for features appearing on the first, and occasionally the third page; sports editor, who writes stories on the school's scheduled athletic events, and under whom the sports columnist works; and headline editor, who, as the title implies, affixes the specified headlines to the stories. In addition to the editor-in-chief, there are editor's chairs for the second and third pages.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council is a group of Senior, Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman students which co-operates with the faculty and the student body in accomplishing important school matters. The Student Council is sponsored by James C. Beane.

Twice each year the seating of the cafeteria is managed by the Council. This arrangement eliminates overcrowded tables and disputes pertaining to seats. Another service is the maintenance and supervision of hostesses at the Meridian Street entrance. These students escort visitors to the office and furnish directions when needed. The outstanding cheer leader of the year is awarded a sweater by the organization, which acquires its funds from the sale of tickets for several student entertainments. The Student Council has made it a practice to visit the other local high schools in search of ideas which might be used to advantage in Shortridge.

The Council was organized eleven years ago by Joel Hadley for the purpose of providing a connecting link between the students and faculty. This group is composed of five Seniors and four Juniors, elected by their respective classes; and three Sophomores and two Freshmen, chosen by the Faculty Advisory Committee and the regular Student Council. The officers are president, Mary Glossbrenner; vice-president, Ann Shaw; secretary, Patty Peterson.

MEMBERS

Seniors: Mary Glossbrenner, Marvin Borman, Ann Shaw, Kurt Vonnegut; Tom Furky and Peggy Trusler, alternates. Juniors: Patty Peterson, Mary Ann Pearce, Jack Kautz, Jim Fenstermaker; Betsy Maynard and Jim Southard, alternates. Sophomores: Carolyn Jones, Doris Fessler, Dick Stackhouse. Freshmen: Katherine Glossbrenner, Dick Elliot.

The school year of 1939-1940 has proved very successful for the Shortridge battalion of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

At their annual Federal Inspection last spring, the Shortridge unit again made a clean sweep of the top honors. For the third time in the past five years, Shortridge placed first in the Regular Army rating for high schools for the states of Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, and West Virginia. For the second consecutive year, the battalion captured the coveted Reserve Officers' plaque, awarded for outstanding drill. The American Legion again presented its First Award Battle Streamer to the Shortridge organization. This award is given to the unit making the best showing in the annual Armistice Day parade. It has been offered only two years, and Shortridge has taken it on both occasions.

The Officers' Club, sponsored by Staff Sergeant Albert Neff, Regular Army instructor, chose for its officers this year Cadet Major Jack T. Davis, president; Cadet Captain Max M. Marsh, vice-president; Cadet Captain Edward M. Ragsdale, secretary; and Cadet Captain Robert M. Hall, treasurer. The club sponsored the R. O. T. C. exhibit at the Family Frolic, bringing together one of the most complete exhibits of infantry weapons and equipment ever shown in the city.

The unit, under the able guidance of Sergeant Neff, and the active leadership of Cadet Major Jack T. Davis, has maintained its championship caliber, which has made it nationally famous.

R. O. T. C.

CADET OFFICERS

Major, Jack T. Davis. Honorary Captains, Dean A. Doyle, Henry Wakeland, Cary Patterson, and Francis M. Curtis. Captains, Robert M. Hall, Ed Ragsdale, Max M. Marsh, and Colin Dyer. First Lieutenants, Robert R. Goodwin, Robert H. Shelhorn, John Spitznagle, Donald White, and Fred Horner. Second Lieutenants, Donald Summers, Gene L. Williams, William E. Lemens, Oliver Holmes, and Paul Swindler.

TEAM

TRI-STATE TEAM

During the 1940 season, the Shortridge debating teams, coached by C. C. Shoemaker, blazed an undefeated trail to the State Debate Tourney held April 5 and 6 at North Manchester, Indiana. Members of the Shortridge team were, affirmative, Phil Robertson and Bert W. Goldberg; and negative, Marvin Borman and Elliott Goodman.

The season opened on February 3 with victories over Washington and Tech. In Sectional competition, the Shortridge negative team conquered Washington and won from Warren Central by default. The affirmative team triumphed over Crispus Attucks and Washington. In another double debate in Caleb Mills Hall, Shortridge triumphed over Rushville for the Regional championship. At Manchester College, Shortridge defeated Hammond and Elkhart High Schools, thereby being entitled to enter the final phase of the tournament with LaPorte High School. Here Shortridge suffered its only defeat of the season and consequently was runner-up in the State finals.

In addition to the members of the State teams, Albert Losche joined the affirmative team and Helen White the negative in Tri-State competition. The affirmative team won a decision at Louisville Male High School while the negative team remained in Indianapolis to defeat Walnut Hills High School of Cincinnati.

The question for debate this year was: "Resolved: That the national government shall own and operate the railroads."

DEBATE

SENATE

For fifty-two years the Shortridge Senate has held its position as dean of all Shortridge clubs. Back in 1887 Miss Laura Donnan hit upon the idea of an organization patterned after the Senate in Washington, D. C., to discuss current political problems and to give experience in debate and parliamentary procedure to its members. For forty years Miss Donnan, by her never failing efforts, kept the Senate chamber a place of learning and pleasure for all Shortridge, a tradition that has been carried through by its present sponsor, Russell V. Sigler, of the history department.

This session has been a busy one for the body. The solons have endeavored in part to untangle the European crisis, balance the budget, solve the unemployment problem, and have also found time to conduct a libel suit (all in fun), against Monday's Echo. Its publicity director, Bob Gemmer, presented three display windows and showed numerous posters commemorating its memorable past. Letters were received from several distinguished ex-senators, among them one from Claude Bowers, ambassador to Chile.

The Senate is looking forward to many more years of developing Shortridgers for future positions of trust in governmental affairs as it has done for the past fifty-two years.

Miss Lucy Montgomery and Mrs. Florence Porter are co-sponsors.

RADIO

The Shortridge Radio Club was organized in 1930 by H. H. Siemers, of the physics department. Among a few of the projects the club sponsored this year were a booth at the Family Frolic equipped with radio transmitting and receiving devices and a window display depicting the advancement of radio in the past ten years. The club owns and operates W9VTS. Once a month field trips are made to transmitting plants of nearby radio stations. Co-chairman: Albert Losche, Dale R. ## SENIOR DRAMA LEAGUE

The Senior Drama League, under the sponsorship of Miss Eleanor Dee Theek, has had an active and successful year. Guest speakers included Harry Pihl of the Scottish Rite, Frederick Winters, dramatics teacher at Butler University, and Edward Stienmetz, director of the Civic Theater.

Early in October, the program for the Parent Teachers' dinner meeting was presented by the group. It was the one act play, "Cousin Arthur," written by Paul Boxell, a former Drama League member.

At the Indiana Drama Festival held at Terre Haute early in March, Eugene Weathers received a medal as the best boy actor, Helen White was awarded honorable mention for her performance, and the play, "Juliet and Romeo", was given superior rating. Those who received honorary keys at Awards Day included Marjorie Clark, Janet Johnson, Jacqueline Spalding, Robert Thurston, Charles Warne, and Helen White.

FICTION CLUB

Guest speakers of the Fiction Club this year have included H. H. Siemers, Miss Mary Glenn Hamilton, Robert Campbell, Mrs. Wendell Sherk, Mrs. Lois Compton Fuller, and Mr. Herbert Hill. Miss Mary Orvis of Indiana University Extension, and Charles J. Wilkerson of the Shortridge faculty spoke respectively on "Writing the Short Story" and "Do's and Don't's for Beginning Writers" at two meetings held for the benefit of students wishing to submit a story, essay, or poem to the Fiction Club. On November 4, in honor of new members, an Italian luncheon was given, followed by the matinee performance of Ethel Barrymore in "The Farm of Three Echoes." Under the guidance of Miss Ruth Armstrong, one committee of the club wrote a serial, while a second group wrote a play which a third produced. The proceeds of the club's annual rummage sale at Mayer Chapel went into a fund for the purchase of a mimeograph machine.

HISTORY

Several interesting talks by guest speakers highlighted the year for the History Club, under the sponsorship of Paul Seehausen of the history department. Coach Nipper spoke on the "History of Football in Indiana". T. Van Vorhees, of the art department, talked on the "History of Art".

The club played host to the Fiction Club and heard H. H. Siemers, of the physics department, tell of his experiences in Scotland as an exchange teacher for Mr. McLauchlan. Barbara Jones and Marvin Borman related some of their experiences at the Northwestern University summer school. Several members of the club attended the Indiana Junior Historical Society's annual convention held here in Indianapolis. They were Ann Browning, Dave Savidge, Bill Hull, and Marvin Borman. The fall initiation was held at the home of Ann Shaw. The spring initiation was combined with a picnic.

MATH

During the past year, the Math Club has been entertained by Mr. Carnahan, Mr. Wade, Mr. Siemers, and other members of the faculty. Mr. Siemers spoke on "Simultaneous Linear Equations Using English Money", and also of his experiences in Scotland. Mr. Carnahan demonstrated the slide rule, while Mr. Wade showed and talked about some of his semi-precious jewels. Mr. Coffin, of the United States Naval Reserve, and also a teacher at Arsenal Technical High School, spoke on "Mathematics in Navigation". The club gave a fall party at the home of Jerry Ann Motley, and the spring party was held in May. Some members of the club assisted Mr. Carnahan with an educational mathematics display in the Family Frolic. This year for the first time, the club is planning to present trophies to the most outstanding mathematicians in the Senior class. Three members of the club, together with three members of the mathematics faculty, will meet and choose the recipients. One of the tasks of the members is to tutor students who have difficulty with mathematics. The club sponsor is Miss Ellen Ocker.

SAFETY

The Safety Club is organized as a council which is attempting to arouse the interest of the school in the problems of safety, and to make the student body of Shortridge "safety conscious". The members are representatives of safety classes, and there is one representative for approximately ten students. The council was organized to help conduct fire drills, to help on the campus, and to participate in other activities in an effort to promote home, school, recreational, and traffic safety.

As a part of a program of varied activities for the year, the club has sponsored a speaker from the Indiana State Police force who demonstrated the drunk-o-meter; Mr. Stoops, secretary of the Hoosier Motor Club, who spoke to the group; and safety engineers from various factories, who talked on industrial safety.

MYTHOLOGY

The purpose of the Mythology Club is to acquaint students with Greek and Roman myths through plays and stories, as Mythology is closely related to art, music, English, Latin, and history.

The Mythology Club was founded fifteen years ago by Miss Laura Rupp, who has always been its sponsor. It meets every other week in Room 328. It is open to all students above English I.

Committee heads for the second semester were Betty Bair, programs; Christina Cherpas, publicity; and Bob Gemmer, social and parties. There have been three parties this year which were held on Hallowe'en, Christmas, and just before spring vacation, when a surprise magic show was given.

CHEMISTRY

The Chemistry Club has been very active this year. The Nature Study Club of Tech played host to the club and showed colored motion pictures. Delegates were sent to the Indiana Junior Academy of Science convention held in Terre Haute. Those who attended were Max Marsh, William Schreiber, Paul Seehausen, and Miss Lois Martin, who sponsors the club.

Other activities included a field trip to the Art Pottery Works, followed by a dinner at the home of Betty Rusie, and a tour through the State Crime Detection laboratories at the State House.

PRE-TIME

The activities of the Pre-Time Club, which deals with prehistoric life, have been of wide scope this year. Speakers from the science department and from outside the school have periodically entertained the members by their talks. Correspondence with museums from coast to coast has brought the club photographs, reconstructions, bulletins, and pamphlets concerning the latest developments of excavations the world over. Field trips, an experiment this year, have proved unusually successful. "Ye Olde Cave Inn", the club's booth at the Family Frolic of 1939, was a replica of a stone age cave and gained wide attention. Many interesting papers submitted by try-out students on subjects pertaining to the world's early history were read before the club and discussed. Howard F. Wright, of the science department, is the sponsor.

TECHNOLOGY

The Technology Club helps to familiarize boys who are interested in engineering as a profession with college entrance requirements and high school courses. Speakers who are acquainted with the various engineering fields help to guide the members in their vocational study.

The group visits local drafting rooms and engineering concerns. As part of a program of activities, the club is organized into committees to work out charts outlining the entrance requirements of engineering colleges.

The club was organized this year under the sponsorship of Colin Lett, of the mathematics and mechanical drawing departments. Gordon O. Johnson, of the mechanical drawing department, is acting in an advisory capacity.

ARCHERY

The Archery Club provides an opportunity for those who are interested in archery to enjoy the sport. If the weather permits, the groups shoot on the outdoor ranges at Riverside Park. Some of the members have made their own bows and arrows, and each is interested in improving his own equipment. The club holds a tournament in the spring, which features competitive shooting and variety contests. Some of the more proficient members have entered city-wide competition.

Kathryn Thompson, of the physical education department, sponsors the club, which was organized last year. It is open to boys and girls and strives to aid both experts and beginners.

SENIOR EQUESTRIENNE

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Thelma Clark, of the physical education department, the Senior Equestrienne Club entered its fourth year as an extra-curricular activity of Shortridge. The members of the club are enthusiastic horse lovers who wish to increase their knowledge and pleasure in cross country riding and horse show competition. During the winter period of inside riding, valuable instruction was received from Mrs. Margaret Feore, one of the outstanding riders in the state. In the fall and spring, brisk rides along the picturesque bridle paths surrounding the Arlington Stables were enjoyed. The club was represented in the Arlington Tournaments for junior riders which were held monthly. A shooting gallery at the Family Frolic was sponsored by the club. The activities of the club have benefited each girl as is shown by the general improvement in riding skill exhibited by the members.

JUNIOR EQUESTRIENNE

The Junior Equestrienne Club is sponsored by Mrs. Thelma Clark of the physical education department. It was founded in 1938 by a group of freshman and sophomore girls, who were not eligible for the membership in the senior group.

Although only last year the club was a newly organized activity, this year it has figured prominently in the circle of young horse enthusiasts. Weekly jaunts at the Arlington Stables provided a source of joy and profit for all. The club was represented in the Arlington Riding Tournaments in a special class for the members of the club only. The tournaments were usually preceded by a club supper. Instruction in the ring and horse show riding was received from Mrs. Margaret Feore. After belonging to the Junior Equestrienne Club in her junior year a girl is eligible for membership in the senior club.

KARTUNE

The Kartune Klub, under the sponsorship of Miss Essie Long of the art department, meets on every second and fourth Thursday of the month. The club is composed of all those interested in drawing cartoons. Its purpose is to promote interest in cartooning and to increase the skill of the cartoonists. The club has had several interesting and entertaining speakers during the year. They have shown animated cartoons, drawn comic pictures of current events, had window displays exhibiting their cartoons, and had a picnic in the spring. The members held a cartoon contest during the year. Judges of the contest were members of the art department. Prizes were given to the winning cartoonists. The personal phase of cartooning was stressed by drawing character studies of members.

PADDLE

The Girls' Paddle Club of Shortridge was organized four years ago by Diane Cohn, Patsy Jackson, and Norma Miller. Miss Naomi A. Fike, sponsor of the club, has encouraged good sportsmanship, and interested girls in improving their game.

The club holds its meetings Wednesdays at the Indianapolis Paddle Club, Meridian Life Building. The equipment is furnished by the dues, which are fifty cents the first semester and twenty-five cents following semesters.

At the end of each semester a trophy is given to the girl who has attained the highest average. Dorothy Elkin was awarded a gold cup for winning the most matches the first semester; Marilyn Scovell, a bronze medal as runner-up.

Sally Green, women's national single and double table tennis champion, is an honorary member of the Paddle Club.

BOYS' BOWLING LEAGUE

The Boys' Bowling League affords Shortridge boys the opportunity to learn to bowl and to have the fun of league competition. Experience or proficiency is not necessary. Only the desire to bowl, regular attendance, and a co-operative attitude is required. The bowling season extends over about twenty-one weeks, and ends with a Grand Handicap Tournament at which prizes are given for the highest scores in singles and doubles divisions. At least once during the season the boys' league meets the girls' in a match.

Six teams named after Major League ball clubs competed this year. Teams and captains were Tigers, Abe Schuchman; Giants, Frank Linville; Red Six, Joe Akard; Reds, Jean Burris; Cubs, Jim Akard; Yankees, George O'Neil. The high single game, 244, was rolled by Edwin Kelb. Sponsoring the league are Lester F. Groth and P. Ward Holaday.

GIRLS' BOWLING LEAGUE

The Girls' Bowling League, organized last year, has a moral sanction from the Woman's International Bowling Conference. Sponsored by Miss Eleanor Richwine of the physical education department, the league consists of six teams called the Jitterbugs, Alley Cats, Martinettes, Swankettes, Strikers, and Scatterbrains, captained by Betty Ronk, Norma Oburn, Billie Martin, Mary Lambertus, Louanna McCreary, and Rita-jean Hancock. The Jitterbugs consisting of Betty Ronk, Armetta Doolittle, Betty Trout, Marguerite Travis, and Virginia Dalton received medals for league play. A team representing the league in the city tournament made up of Betty Ronk, Betty Trout, Norma Oburn, Billie Martin, and Betty Grayson won class "C". Armetta Doolittle and Louanna McCreary were winners in class "B". Armetta Doolittle had high three game series. Louana McCreary led the individual keglers with a 222.

SPORTS SCRIBES

The second year of its existence found the members of the Sports Scribes Club making rapid progress in their efforts to maintain the high standards of sport write-ups in the Echo and to promote sportsmanship about the school. Compiling the statistical records of the season's games is only one of their more important functions. The club members cooperate with one another to prevent duplication in their sport columns and to give the student body advance information on coming athletic events. They are aided in their efforts by the sponsor, William Merrill, of the physical education department. The Echo sports writers were first organized last year by Sol Blickman and Ralph Hesler. Plans for a club pin are being made. Membership is usually limited to ten, two from each Echo staff.

ATHLETIC ASSISTANTS

The girl assistants in the athletic office are in charge of assigning lockers, keeping records, and making collections and refunds on lockers. The girls may be found on duty in the athletic office every period of the schoolday and during conference. They work under the direction of Simon P. Roache, of the mathematics department.

Russel S. Julius, director of athletic activities, and Mr. Roache, in charge of golf, gave a delightful party for all the girls at the home of Mr. Julius at Christmas time. As usual, the girls gave their annual Christmas party to all the coaches after conference.

The Senior assistants include Elinor Faucett, Ann Loser, Mary Horton, and Norma Hyman. Junior assistants are Nancy Jefferson and Norma Oburn.

HI-Y

The Hi-Y Club, a Shortridge branch of the Y.M.C.A., strives to promote clean living among its members and to develop them physically and mentally. Most of their projects are concerned with bettering conditions around Shortridge, such as constructing posters calling attention to the noise in the cafeteria, and placing a new mirror in the boys' wash room. During the Family Frolic, they sponsored a booth patterned somewhat after the fashion of a penny arcade, baffling visitors with such stunts as advertising two red bats (baseball bats painted red). They take frequent swims at the Y.M.C.A. Dinners with other Hi-Y organizations and impressive induction ceremonies highlight the year. Howard Wright, of the biology department, sponsors the club.

Weekly meetings are held at the Rauh Memorial Library, and monthly at the Y.M.C.A. Instruction is given by trained workers from the Y.M.C.A. who help the boys in their efforts to become good citizens. Their success is evidenced by the boys' leadership in school affairs.

CORRESPONDENCE CLASS

All authorized Shortridge High School publicity is written by the Journalistic Correspondence class. This class, under the supervision of Al. J. Kettler, Shortridge publicity director, serves three of the Indianapolis daily papers and six community papers. Members of Mr. Kettler's staff are selected from the Journalistic Composition classes.

Members of the staff are as follows: Witt Hadley, city desk (school news) correspondent of The Indianapolis Star; Jack O'Brien, sports correspondent of The Indianapolis Star; Dave Savidge, correspondent of The Indianapolis Times; Marvin Borman, correspondent of The Indianapolis News; Nick Smyrnis, correspondent of The North Side Press; Patricia Fletcher, correspondent of The Irvington Review; Jeanne Johnson, correspondent of The Spectator; Sidney Cahn, correspondent of The North Side Lookout; Jacqueline Spaulding, correspondent of The North Side Topics; Mary Katherine Jones, correspondent of The South Side Press; and Joe Goldsmith, student publicity manager, Shortridge athletic department.

HI TRI CLUB

The Hi-Tri Club is a Y.W.C.A. organization of high school Girl Reserves. It meets every Wednesday and is sponsored by Mrs. F. L. Goodman. Activities for the year include a dance, a play, swimming parties, go-and-see trips, and round table discussions. Once a month the high school clubs of the city have a dance at the Y.W.C.A. The April dance was sponsored by the Shortridge club. They have a representative at all Inter-Club Council meetings.

TRUE BLUE CLUB

The True Blue Club, sponsored by Mrs. Della Thompson, dean of girls, was founded in 1922 as a service organization. Among their activities is the Big Sister department, which assists entering freshmen to become acquainted with the school. The Newcomers department provides students each period to take newcomers about the school.

The persons in charge of their respective departments are: newcomers, Sallie Vaught; social, Bette Steinkamp; publicity, Carolyn Bliss, Judy Bright, and Betty Willingham; and notes of condolence, Mary Lou Wilkerson.

FIRST AID ASSISTANTS

Girls who are interested in nursing and who have displayed proficiency in the work of the home nursing course, help the nurses, Miss Ina Gaskill and Miss Marie Moran, in the health service. Two of the girls are on duty every period of the day to help take care of students who become ill during the day, to assist in recording the heights and weights of freshmen and other newcomers, and to perform other duties incidental to the health service.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

Shortridge High School is a member of the National Red Cross. The purpose of this group is to take part in the national and international program of the organization through participation in activities that promote friendship, understanding, and co-operation.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Opal G. Conrad, their local work has been to provide Christmas baskets for the Day Nursery and for needy families, to make favors for veterans, and to sew for the Senior Red Cross.

BOY SCOUT

One of the most progressive clubs in school, the Shortridge Scout Club, has enjoyed an active year. Last fall the organization co-operated with Miss Smith and the Girl Scouts in sponsoring and presenting the "Gay Nineties Cafe" at the Family Frolic, picturing their conception of the time "when pa was courting ma." In the field of advancement, the club chose the Indian Lore merit badge as the semester theme. Among the several speakers who addressed the club on the subject were Walter Carnahan, of the mathematics department, and F. O. Belzer, local Scout executive. The study of this badge included research concerning Hoosier tribes of Indians, the study of their customs, and the actual construction of Indian objects in general. Mr. Klopp, of the biology department, sponsors the Scouts.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS

The Shortridge Neta Camp Fire group, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Verlin B. Cain, is open to all Camp Fire Girls in Shortridge High School. Activities of the year included several luncheons at the members' homes, skating parties at Riverside, weiner roasts, week-end camping trips, a tea for the girls' mothers on Valentine Day, pitch-in suppers, and steak fries. A city-wide project based on the national birthday honor, had as its subject this year, "Safety" and "Skillful Living." The girls have worked on handicrafts and studied various types of nature. They take hikes, and enjoy the life of Camp Delight, northeast of the city. The group meets every Wednesday. Membership in the group opens to a girl the advantages of belonging to the City High School Council, which discusses special problems of the high school age.

GIRL SCOUT

The Senior Girl Scout Club is under the sponsorship of Miss Martha E. Smith, of the French department. The club meets every first and third Thursday of the month and is composed of all the Senior Girl Scouts in Shortridge High School. The club, together with the Boy Scout Club, presented one of the most popular booths at the Family Frolic, the "Gay Ninties Cafe." The girls have had speakers this year from downtown department stores, who have discussed fashions, make-up, interior decorating, and various subjects of interest to the girls. Several representatives of the Indianapolis Girl Scout Organization have spoken to the girls. The club made an interesting tour of several department stores during the year. A picnic was held in the spring.

CROQUIS

The second year of the Croquis Club, under the sponsorship of Miss Jane Messick, of the art department, proved quite successful. During the past year the club has been entertained by several outside speakers. Theodore Van Voorhees, head of the art department, spoke on "Thirty Masterpieces," and showed slides. The club sketches from models and pays frequent visits to the John Herron Art Institute. The members have given two parties for new members, one last fall and one this spring. In order to become a member of the club, one must submit drawings or pieces of handicraft, which are judged by members of the art faculty. The Croquis pin is a miniature gold pallet and brush with small pieces of colored enamel representing paint. The name "Croquis" is derived from the French word and means "sketch."

Each semester Mrs. Della Thompson, Dean of Shortridge girls, chooses assistants to help her. They take charge of the Lost and Found department, show new pupils to their classrooms, receive callers for Mrs. Thompson and Shortridge, and perform various other duties. The assistants are usually those who volunteer because they are interested in the work and feel that this experience gives them poise and wider social contacts. They receive no pay or school credit for their work.

The assistants for this year are Marjory Gorham, Justine Yakey, Barbara Krieg, Barbara Holscher, Martha Sims, Mary Elizabeth Hays, Jo Ella Yakey, Margelia Fillebrown, Ann Wilson, Doris Mulford, Josephine Swearinger, Virginia Armstrong, Edwina King, Evelyn Wilson, and Bettie Jane Ewen.

PRINTERS' PI

Three editions of Printers' Pi were published this year with the combined efforts of the eight printing classes in Shortridge. Printers' Pi is a six or eight page hand-set newspaper, including stories and cartoons about the printing students' activities. Each student writes and sets his own story. A special staff assisted in the final editing and make-up. This staff consisted of Gene Battreall, Tom Curry, Tom Koch, Carl Malcom, Joe Spaulding, Hans Steilberger, Wayne Messersmith, Carl Gordon, and Jack Kimble. Harold Irby is the sponsor.

MUSIC

CHOIR, VOICE ENSEMBLE, AND BOYS' GLEE CLUB

Strongly representative of our progressive music department, are the Shortridge Choir, the Boys' Glee Club, and the Voice Ensemble, which are directed by Mrs. Laura C. Moag, and accompanied by Miss Christine Houseman. In addition to their work in the various school choirs, many of the students participate in other outside musical activities such as church choirs and voice contests. Some have won scholarships and competitive auditions.

Outstanding among musical events of the year are the Christmas celebration and the Spring Festival, which use combinations of voice groups, band, orchestra, and organ. Advanced vocal groups are given an opportunity to exhibit their work.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

A distinct organization for the vocal department is the Girls' Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Geraldine Trotter. The group is composed of fifty girls who have been chosen by audition for exceptional ability. Many organizations in Indianapolis have been fortunate in hearing the Glee Club, since it has sung before the Woman's Department Club, the Women's Auxiliary of the Marion County Medical Association, several churches, and the Shortridge and Indianapolis Council of Parent-Teacher Associations programs. During the past year, it has also sung at school auditoriums, the Spring Music Festival, and at Good Friday services at the North Methodist Church. The group is especially active during the Christmas season when it carols in the school halls and at various charitable institutions.

SHORTRIDGE BAND

The Shortridge Band of one hundred and six pieces, under the baton of Robert J. Shultz, played at all the home basketball and football games during the season. Outside of school the band played for Vandaworker Day, a celebration honoring the fortieth anniversary of J. B. Vandaworker of the Indianapolis Newsboy's Band; they headed the program given at the Butler University fieldhouse for the benefit of local welfare agencies; and they also placed first in the annual Armistice Day parade. Activities at school include playing for the P. T. A., the spring concert, participation in the Spring Music Festival, and the presentation of two auditoriums. The outstanding feature of one program was Martin Marks, a junior, one of the city's outstanding young pianists, who played George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." The band this year made a movie film of all marching activities. This film was presented in one of the booths at the Family Frolic. Twenty-six seniors received band service sweaters this year.

BRASS ENSEMBLE

CHOIR

BRASS ENSEMBLE

The Brass Ensemble has achieved great popularity about the city, playing for numerous dinner clubs and churches, the annual Easter service on the Monument, and two radio broadcasts over station WIRE.

ORCHESTRA

With the playing of the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" at the graduation of the 1940 Senior class, the Shortridge High School orchestra rang down its curtain on a most successful year. Featuring appearances before the student body, the P.T.A., and other local organizations, the concert season has been a most enjoyable one for both the students and their always attentive audiences.

Gold, silver, and bronze pins have been awarded to the seniors who contributed three, two, and one years of outstanding service to the organization. As a guest, Ferdinand Schaefer, conductor emeritus of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, assisted in the presentation of these pins. Mary Marjorie Smead has been concert mistress the past season, and Will F. Wise has wielded the baton.

BATON CLUB

The Shortridge Baton Club, under the sponsorship of Miss Geraldine Trotter, enjoyed another successful season. In addition to its popular auditoriums, the club presented "The Baton of Melody" in Caleb Mills Hall for the Family Frolic. There were two performances during the evening, given to capacity audiences. Bomar Cramer, famous Indianapolis pianist, was presented by the club in recital at Caleb Mills Hall. The proceeds from Mr. Cramer's concert in Caleb Mills Hall have been used to establish a music library for Shortridge, a project to be continued by the club in the future.

Among the outside activities, the club attended a concert given by Mr. Cramer in the English Theatre. Prominent guest speakers and artists, as well as members of the club, have furnished programs throughout the year. The officers were Melvin Unger, president; Martin Marks, vice-president; Margery Clark, secretary; and Mary Marjorie Smead, treasurer.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

The Shortridge Social Committee has had one of its most gratifying seasons during the fall of 1939 and the spring of 1940. The group comprising its membership seems to have been particularly co-operative and efficient, and has worked as a unit to hold a series of dances, which were all well attended.

The officers of the Committee are president, Kurt Vonnegut; vice-president, Mary Glossbrenner; secretary, Ann Shaw; treasurer, Fred Rassman.

The first dance of the season, usually a problem, was named by a contest, the "Gym Jam Jump", and attracted large numbers of matinee revelers. A novel feature was added by the presence of Miss Eleanor Hopwood, a professional dancing teacher, who held a brief instruction period for those who wished to learn the newest in dance steps.

Following that came an unprecedented type of party. To the terror of multitudinous males, a "Sadie Hawkins Day" was proclaimed and the leap year spirit ran rampant. No tickets were issued and an unheard-of admission fee of five cents was paid at the door. This dance possessed more of the feeling of gayety than any of its predecessors, and will surely be repeated.

At the annual Round-Up early in December, the Social Committee sponsored its usual dance. Chuck Smith and his Butler University orchestra provided the music for one of the committee's largest dances.

As the smoothest dance of the year, the "Bluebelle - Uglyman" festival seemed to draw the largest crowd. Pictures of these popular students appear in another part of this book.

The Social Committee offers its heartfelt gratitude to the student body for a bumper year of merriment.

There was no chairman for the "Gym Jam Jump". Other dance chairmen were, "Jitney Jamboree" (Sadie Hawkins Day), Ann Shaw; Family Frolic, Sidney Cahn; Bluebelle - Uglyman, Marvin Farber.

FAMILY FROLIC

On December 8, 1939, the Parent-Teachers' Association presented the annual Family Frolic. Its theme was the seventy-fifth anniversary of Shortridge. Approximately three thousand parents, students, and teachers attended the Frolic. The proceeds were given to the Student Aid Fund.

Fifteen Shortridge girls modeled at the style show; the Baton Club provided a musical show in the auditorium; the Gay 90's Cafe and the Pretzlebude, managed by the Boy and Girl Scouts and the German Club, furnished refreshments; and the Fiction Club startled the public with the House of Terror. Many enjoyed dancing to the music of Chuck Smith and his orchestra in the gym. Others were attracted to the Math Club exhibit, the Safety exhibit, the Radio Club and R. O. T. C. demonstration, and the Cake Walk and Coffee Shop. The fortune telling booths and the Pre-Time Club's "Ye Olde Cave Inn" also proved to be successful. The entire Frolic was built around the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of Shortridge.

BLUEBELLE

Ann Bishop is a remarkable combination of wonderful looks and functioning gray matter. The V-8's boast of her as a member, while the Honor Society claims her more civilized moments. This glorious little gal is the vice-president of the illustrious class of '40 and gave some of the best years of her life to the Student Council of '39.

The class of 1940 proved their superiority in beauty by having two Bluebelles chosen from their class. In 1939, Susan Alvis, now secretary of the class of '40, was crowned.

Dick Gage, demon maker of buckets, left little doubt as to who was the best man in the field of ten likely lads. His popularity had been tested on a smaller scale upon a number of occasions. His election to the cherished position of honorary basketball captain was easily attained, and it was mainly his spark that sent the team crashing through for a sectional championship. The voting masses knew what the score was this year. There is not a finer fellow in school. Left to right, top: Kenny Smock, Walt Freihofer, Fred Maynard, Sigmar Muhl. Center: Pat West, Uglyman Dick Gage, Dave Savidge. Lower: Joe Shedron, Kurt Vonnegut, Vic Jose.

CLASS OF 1941

The activities of the Junior Class began with the election of officers on November 16, 1939. The following were chosen: James D. Mitchell, president; Rosemary Wilmeth, vice-president; Mary Ann Morrison, secretary; Virginia Van Geyt, treasurer; and Betty Jane Mitchell, Vaudeville chairman. Patricia Peterson, Mary Ann Pearce, Jack Kautz, and Jim Fenstermaker were elected to represent the class on the Student Council. Alternates were Betsy Maynard and Jim Southard.

The tremendous success of the Junior Vaudeville of 1940 was due to the hard work and co-operation of Betty Jane Mitchell, chairman, Mrs. Nell M. Thomas and Enoch D. Burton, class sponsors, the act chairmen and their sponsors, and the many students participating in the show.

"Say It With Music," the winning act, was sponsored by Miss Charlotte Bruce and Miss Barbara Turner. The co-chairmen were Dorothy Ottinger and Doris Woods. Dick Pierce, master of ceremonies, directed this act composed of singing, dancing, comedy, and a fast swing band.

Ruth Ann Quick, Jean Bosson, and Emily Jean Lewis were co-chairmen of "Syncopated Blues", which was a musical act featuring Earl Breech and his orchestra. Miss Kathryn Thompson and Walter Geisler were the sponsors.

"Fiesta Time," a delightfully different Spanish act, was presented by Mary Jane Hackemeyer, Teddy Beall, and Mickey Roth. It was sponsored by Miss Hazel Whisenand and Miss Mariesue Eisenhut.

The last act was divided into two scenes, "Winter Rendezvous" and "Skating at the Pole." The first scene depicted winter entertainment at an eating place and had Nancy McIntosh as its chairman with Mrs. Gertrude Weathers and Miss Martha Smith as sponsors. The second section featured a roller skating troupe and was sponsored by Mrs. Thelma Clarke. Dorothy Byers and Betty Jean Miller were co-chairmen.

Three splendid intermission acts were well presented. The largest intermission act ever given, "Lady Be Limber," was a Individual awards went to Emily Jean Lewis for Friday night, to Shirley Pierce for Saturday night, and to Dick Pierce for both nights.

Rosemary Wilmeth and Mary Ann Morrison were co-chairmen of the ushers.

Coach Bob Nipper and his City Championship football squad of 1939 presented as their Diamond Jubilee gift to the school an undefeated season which was one of the most successful in the history of Shortridge. Nine years of outstanding victories for Nipper coached elevens were climaxed on the seventy-fifth anniversary year by the most brilliant season "Nip's" teams have ever experienced. There were eight victories, one tie, and no defeats, resulting in his third undisputed City Championship.

In September, Coach Nipper's gridmen traveled to Brazil, Indiana, for the season's opener. Ol' Sol beat down from the heavens and kept the mercury near 100. However, it failed to wilt the Shortridge lads' enthusiasm and they ran the score up to 20-6 before beginning the trek home. Southport's Cardinals next fell by the wayside when the teams played under the lights. The final score was 14-7. Stivers, of Dayton, Ohio, invaded the home camp for the third game of the '39 season. No match for the Blue gridmen, they failed to score a point. Bill Allerdice was the big noise of the game, scoring 13 of the 21 points.

Behind the eightball for the first time in the campaign, Shortridge failed to emerge completely and consequently had to split the decision with Culver's Cadets. The final score was 6-6. The next week-end saw the Nippermen successfully ride Jeff's Broncs. When the annual rodeo was over, the locals led 27-13. This was the fourth victory and the team still showed plenty of evidence of their early power.

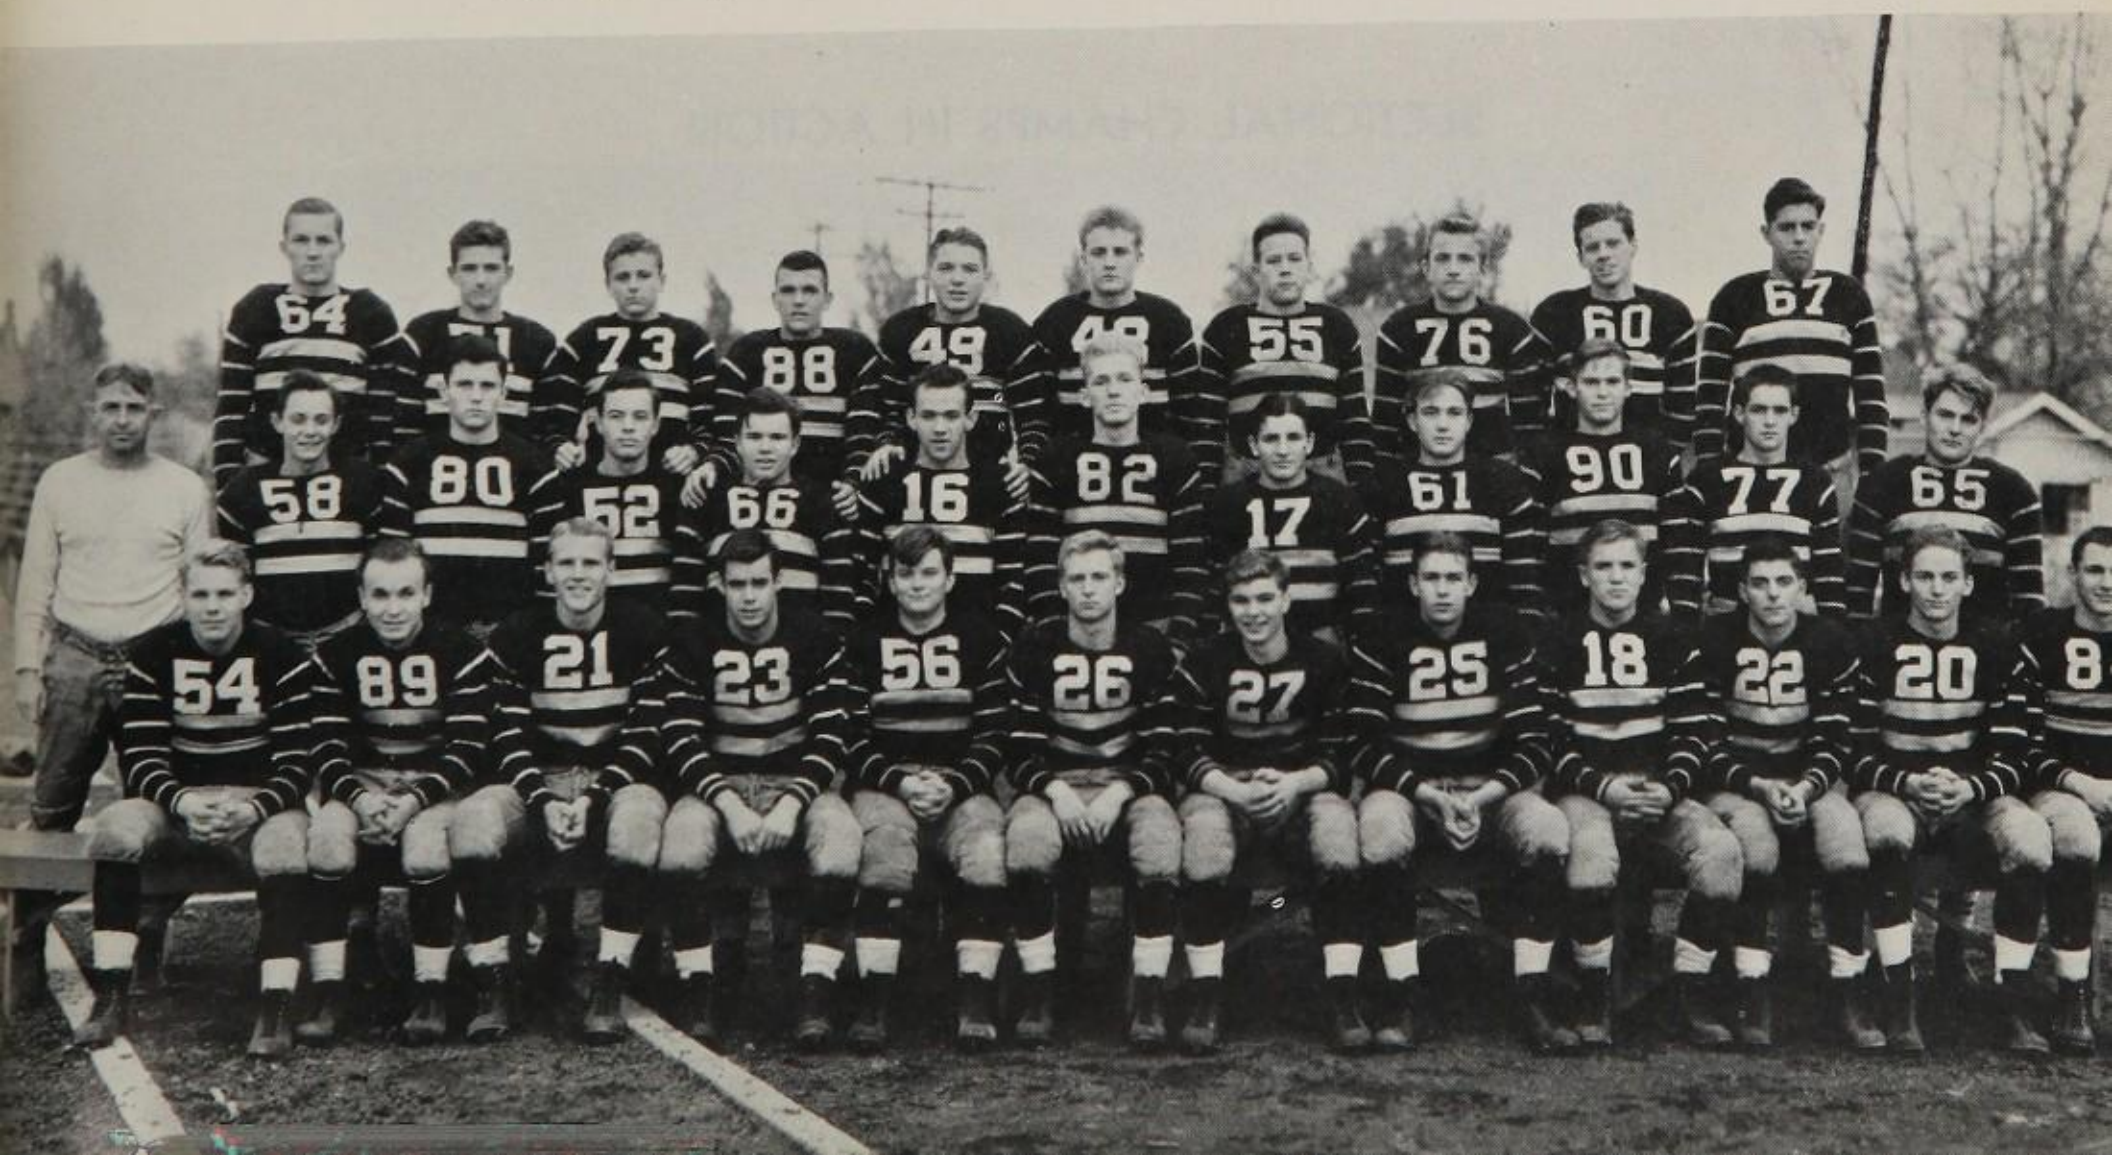

In their first City Series competition, Shortridge hurdled Washington's Continentals by eking out a 6-0 triumph. Cathedral fell to the axe the following week by the same score. A pass from Smock to Freihofer provided the winning points. Crawfordsville was the opposition that furnished the final tune-up for the Tech game. The team lacked scoring punch and pushed across only one marker. Kenny Smock drove the pigskin across and converted for Shortridge.

Then the climax of every Shortridge season was at hand, for the Tech game came the following week.

Three periods of thrilling, exciting, and scoreless football had become history. A game fighting Shortridge line had held off drive after drive by a heavier and stronger Tech team. The Blue attacks, in turn, had folded up against the Green forward wall. Then the break came. Maynard ripped off thirty yards on an off tackle plunge which placed the ball on the Eastsider's two yard line. The suspense was terrific and a death-like hush pervaded the stands as Smock received the pass from center. Then a roar, like the surge of the ocean's surf, echoed from the Butler bowl as the referee held up his arms to signal a score. A fake kick was successful for the extra point that was to be the margin of victory. Even then, the drama was not completely over. All will remember the Tech touchdown and all will recall the tenseness of the place kick and the anticlimax when it was repeated because of off-sides. Eluding the uprights, the ball veered off to the side. The Blue had won 7-6, thus gaining another City championship and completing the season undefeated.

Two of the most sought after awards of Shortridge athletics, the Herbert T. Wagner and Frank J. Skinner trophies, were presented to Gene Stauber and Kenneth Smock. The Wagner award is made to the most improved player and the Skinner trophy to the most valuable player.

Shortridge major letter awards were made to Capt. Kenny Smock, Walt Freihofer, Harry Ent, Jim Miller, Dick Mercer, Bob Shelhorn, Charles Van Tassel, Dick Worley, Gene Stauber, Gene Williams, Fred Maynard, Joe Shedron, Jim Mitchell, John Smith, Dave Strack, Al Levenson, Bob Dalrymple, Bill Allerdice, and Van Duncan. The senior student manager, Fred Meyer, received a letter.

Of the fifteen Purdue medals awarded to the players of six local high schools, four were received by Shortridge gridmen. They were Capt. Kenny Smock, Walt Freihofer, Harry Ent, and Jim Miller.

SECTIONAL CHAMPS IN ACTION

BASKETBALL

by JACK O'BRIEN

It was not the coolest, keenest-eyed, greatest collection of bucketeers ever assembled at Shortridge, but no one will argue that Coach Kenny Peterman's 1939-40 Blue Devil net snipers were not the fightingest aggregation ever to carry the Blue and White onto a battle-scarred hardwood.

With only one letterman, Dick Gage, and only one other player, Bryan West, with varsity experience, Coach Peterman's was indeed a difficult problem. Out of Gage, West, Chuck Benjamin, Dave Strack, Walt Freihofer, Larry Yeager, Bob Paddock, and Jim Wiley, his was the task of developing a winning court combination. He did this shrewdly, bringing the boys along slowly until they reached their peak in the sectionals. It was a long, tedious, and trying job, but of the eventual outcome, none can complain.

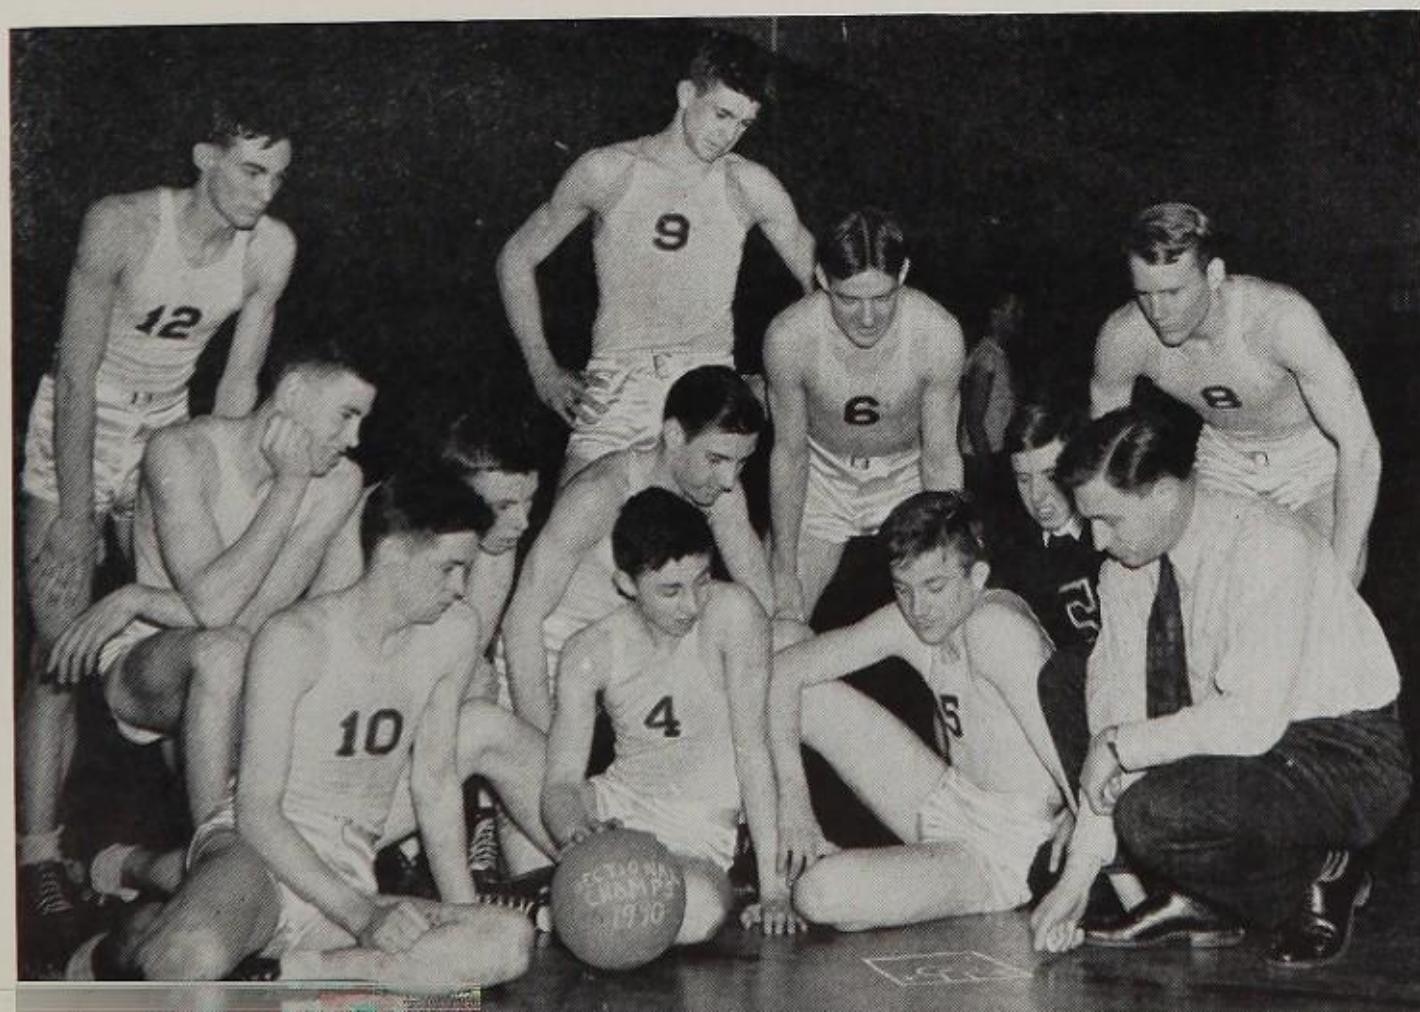

Fourteen victories out of twenty-four starts, sectional champions, and finalists in the regionals was the way the Satans stacked up in the campaign of '39-'40.

Their first two starts, Greenfield and Noblesville, were unimpressive, despite victories. Their defense and fundamentals were badly in need of polish, and this became even more evident when they dropped three straight to Greencastle, Shelbyville, and Southport. They looked slightly improved when they led the way to down Tech, 28-26, but the following week-end Martinsville and Lafayette both took the Satans into camp.

Things brightened when they swamped Cathedral and impressively downed Columbus, but Rushville tasted Blue blood the following week.

The next week the Blue Devils bounced back and upset both Lebanon and Crawfordsville, and then went on to drop Manual. After the Blue led Kokomo for twenty-eight minutes, the Kats rallied and won "going away." Archie Chadd outfoxed the homeboys, and Anderson won the last regularly scheduled game.

In the sectionals the Peterman quintet got a distinct break in the draw, but had to fight all the way to emerge victorious. By dropping Broad Ripple, little Castleton, Manual, for the second time, and a very strong Decatur Central five, the Northsiders won the right to meet Pittsboro in the first round of the regionals.

At the Tech gym, the underdog favorite, Lapel, came in with a fourth stanza rush to send Greenfield to the showers broken-hearted, as Shortridge did the same for Pittsboro. Few who saw it will ever forget that Blue Devil - Bulldog battle, that 20-9 halftime deficit, the hectic fourth quarter, in which the lead changed hands five times, only to have courageous Lapel triumph, 39 to 36.

The best combination was Gage and West, forwards, Yeager, center, and Benjamin and Strack, guards; but Walt Freihofer was the sixth man on the squad, a frequent starter, and equally capable at any position. Paddock, Wiley, Bernie Casselman, and Bill Swaim rounded out the first ten.

Monogrammed sweaters were awarded to Gage, Freihofer, Wiley, and Yeager, seniors; and West, Benjamin, Strack, and Paddock, juniors. Sheldon Watson received a manager's sweater for his four years of loyal labor. Dick Gage was named honorary captain by his team-mates at the end of the season.

Chuck Benjamin copped the Dr. George V. Underwood trophy for the second time. Benjamin was named most valuable varsity man by Coach Feterman, while Bill Swaim won the Underwood most valuable reserve player award.

No report on the Blue Devils could possibly be complete without a paragraph in praise of their fighting. The reckless abandon with which they dived for loose balls, gave and asked no quarter, fought and clawed their way every inch, and battled desperately, regardless of the odds, are the ingredients of which champions are made.

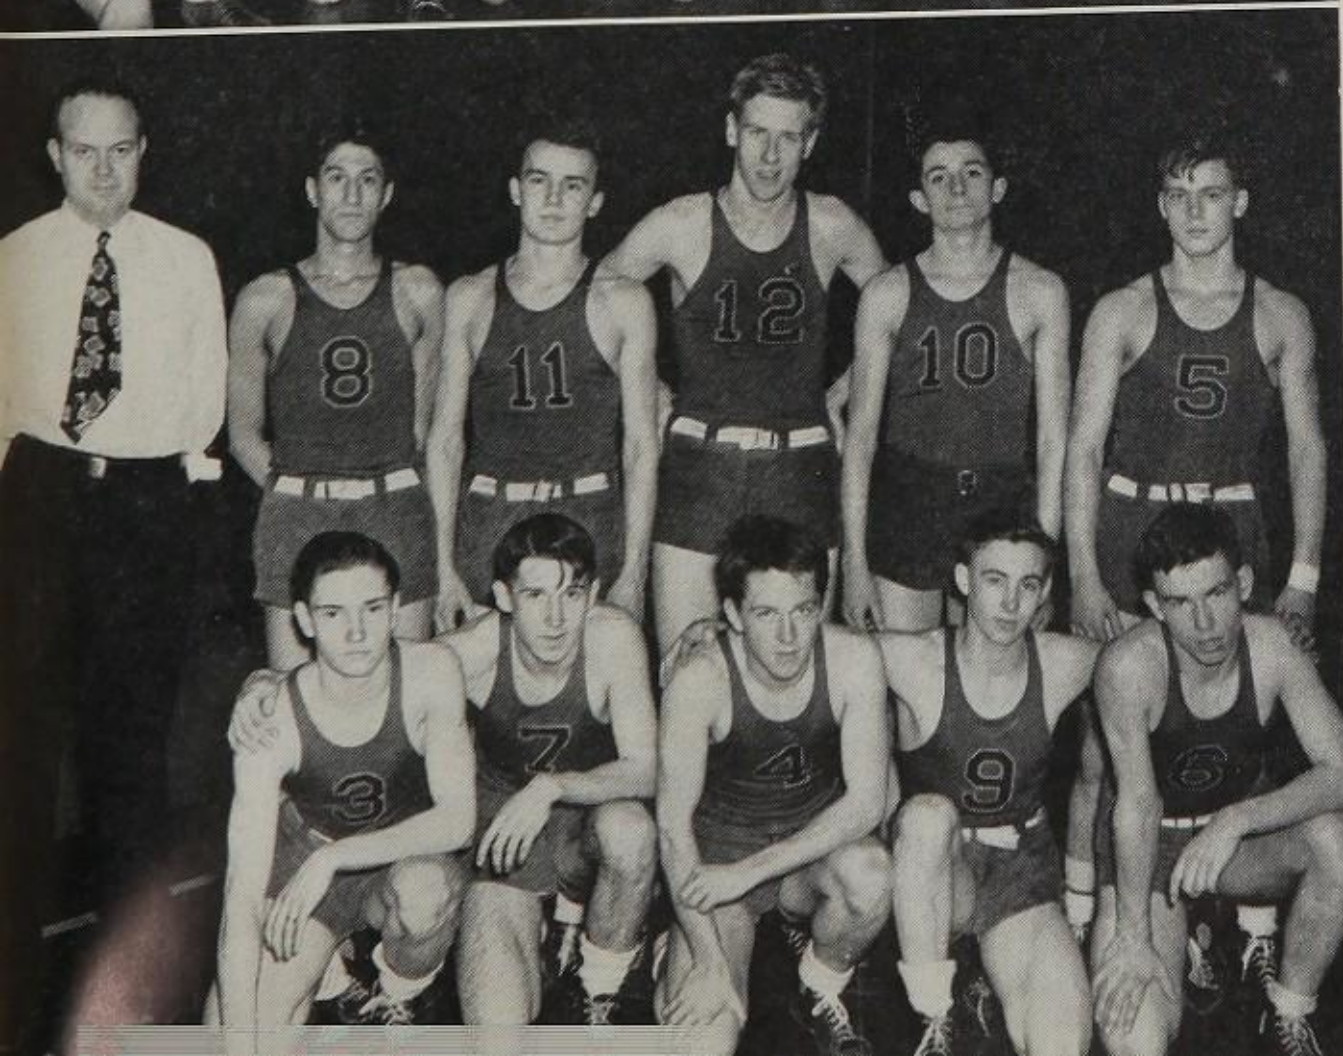

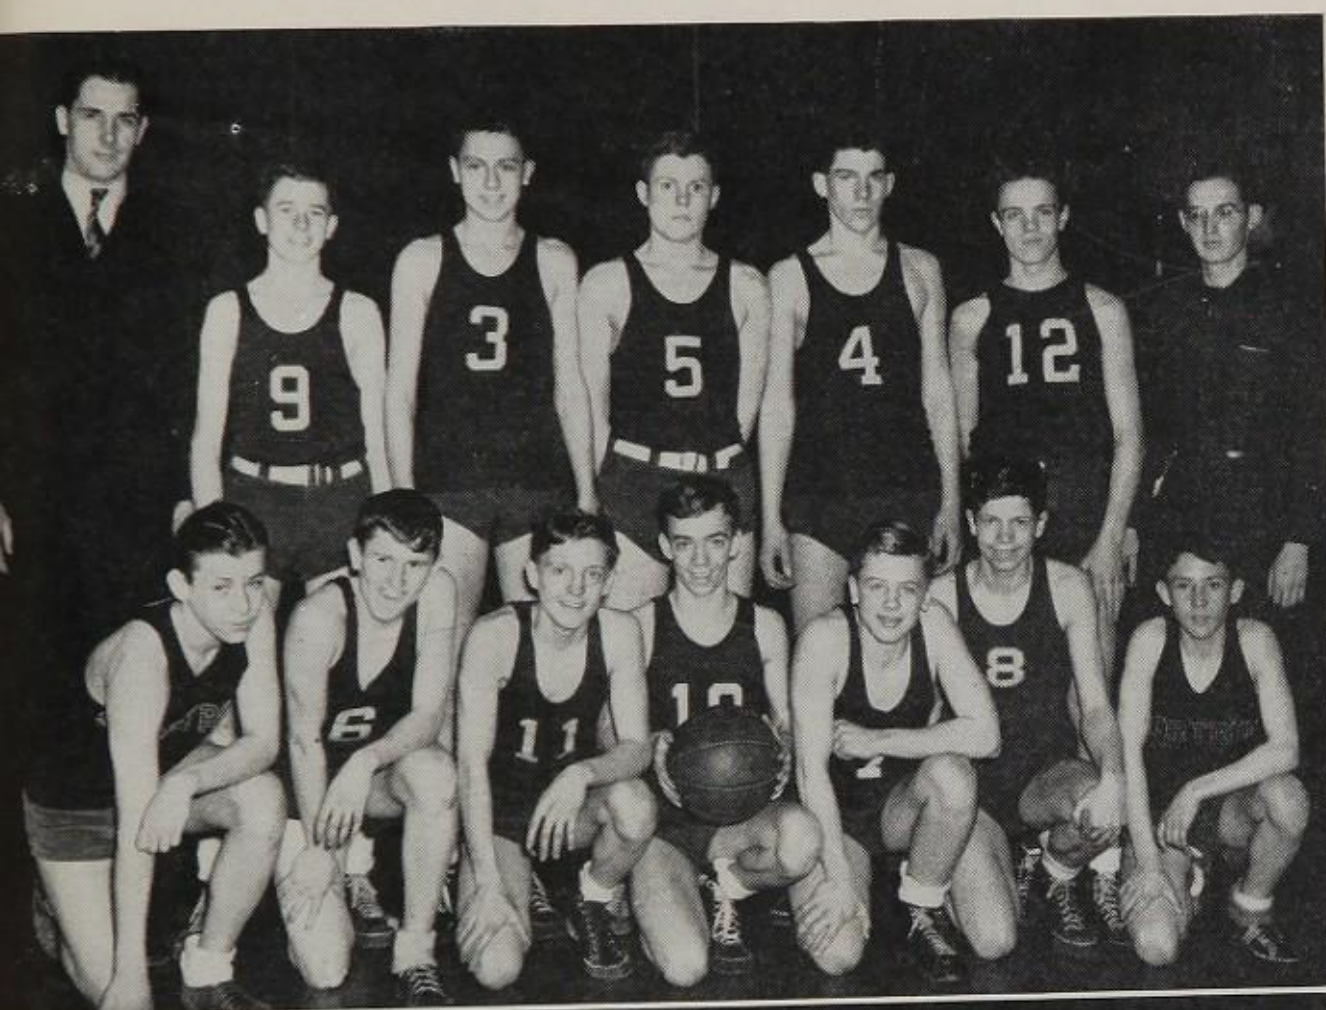

We of the class of 1940 are proud to have had athletes of that caliber representing us and Shortridge on the hardwood, for they have given us something long to cherish and remember — the "Battling Blue Devils!"

THE FROSH

Coach Tom D. Woods' rhinie crew enjoyed a successful season. They triumphed in nine games and lost but four. The squad was forced to forfeit three games because of an inelligible player. High light of their season came when they defeated the reserves, who in turn outscored the powerful Kokomo reserves the same day. Watch the Rhinies!

RESERVES

Without reserve strength, the future of any team is dark. Coach Claude Keesling's job is to keep this future shiny and bright. The stress is put on drilling fundamentals into our future varsity squad. At the conclusion of the '39-'40 season, the score columns showed that the junior Satans had won eight games and lost ten. The reserve strength was frequently sapped by the varsity, because the first team needed players to fill a roster made vacant by illness. Perhaps that is the reason that the losses outnumbered the victories. Bill Swaim and Bernie Casselman performed stellar service for the Keesling crew and were then advanced to varsity rating when they were needed for tourney play. Swaim was awarded the Underwood trophy for being the most valuable player on the reserve team.

TRACK

by WITT HADLEY

The Shortridge High School track squad, under Coach Don Knight, opened a hard fought season at Kokomo, where they were edged out, 64½ to 44¾. The Satans won six first positions. The 750 and 1,500 yard relays provided Kokomo with the margin for victory. Captain Fred Maynard won first in both hurdle events. The meet with Jefferson High School of Lafayette gave the Blue Devils a better chance to strut their stuff when they trounced the Bronchs 62½ to 46½. Shortridge annexed a slam in the shot put event; Captain Maynard grabbed off firsts in both hurdle events. Tech gained its seventh consecutive victory in the City Track Meet. Shortridge placed just behind Washington for third, with 42 points. Don King returned to action with a surprising victory in the high jump. Shortridge placed second in the Southport Relays, to Tech's powerful first. They scored 47½ to 53½. Though Shortridge won six firsts to Manual's four, reserve strength gave a 58 to 51 victory. Shortridge qualified three men for the State Meet. In the sectionals, Maynard won the high hurdles, and Don King remained undefeated in the high jump. Bill Compton came through for a second in the shot put. Captain Fred Maynard, undefeated in the high hurdles, was responsible for many of the Shortridge points.

GOLF

The Shortridge High School golfers, under Simon P. Roache, enjoyed a successful season. Ably supported by the linksmen, Dick Stackhouse, Robert Stackhouse, Dick Mercer, George O'Neil, Dick Herin, and Bob Smith, the Shortridge golf squad, won a large majority of their matches. The following scores speak for themselves: Tech fell  $12\frac{1}{2}$  to  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; Franklin bowed  $10\frac{1}{2}$  to  $1\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $8\frac{1}{2}$  to  $3\frac{1}{2}$ ; Culver lost 10 to 8; Anderson tumbled  $12\frac{1}{2}$  to  $2\frac{1}{2}$ ; and Tech won 10 to 8.

Shortridge placed third in the LaPorte Invitational meet. Dick Mercer won low medal honors with a 76 and was outstanding for the Blue Devils all season.

TENNIS

Coach Howard Wood and his Blue Devil racqueteers had hung up seven consecutive victories in the 1939-40 season at the time the Annual went to press.

Responsible for the victories were Roger Downs, Charles Tichenor, Joe Shedron, Bob Paddock, and James Kalleen, the first squad. They were aided by Sidney Iszaks, Bob Wood, Harold Morgan, Fred Flickinger, Bob Robinson, and Marshall Samms.

The Satans met Tech twice and defeated them by the scores of 6 to 1 and 6 to 2. Culver also fell before the Blues, 6 to 1.

Wiley of Terre Haute was the first team to be dropped in the Spring of 1940. The score was 4 to 2. Then Tech was handed its third straight loss by the Satans, 4 to 3. Culver's Cadets were again no match as the Blues swamped them 11 to 1. Burris of Muncie was the next school to taste defeat by a 9 to 0 margin.

Roger Downs, responsible for many victories, proved to be one of the outstanding tennis players in the history of Blue Devil teams. Charles Tichenor, freshman ace, displayed his ability by defeating Tech's number one man. He shows promise of being one of the best in the coming years.

PHILATERON

The foremost girls' athletic organization is the Philateron Club. This honorary group has a membership of girls who are all-round athletes, good sports, and reliable students. A girl must have 250 points to become a candidate for membership and 500 points to be a member. These points are won by participation in various sports.

Officers of the club this year were president, Rita Jean Hancock; vice-president, Zelda Klezmer; secretary, Betty Willingham; treasurer, Constance Green; and sergeant at arms, Nadine Crosby. Miss Kathryn Thompson sponsors the Philateron.

SWEATER GIRLS

To win a sweater, which is the highest award given, a girl must have 1,000 athletic points. These points are gained by participation in any of the following activities: tennis, hockey, hemingway, basketball, volleyball, soft-ball, efficiency and posture contests, swimming achievements, and Gym Exhibitions. The number of points offered in any of these activities is never over 100, and usually less.

Each stripe on the sweater represents a varsity team of which the girl is a member, and each gold stripe represents a varsity team of which the girl is a captain.

Girls who have won sweaters this year are Betty Ronk and Rita Jean Hancock.

HEMINGWAY

Captains of the intramural hemingway teams were Marguerite Travis, Shirley Murray, Dorothy Elkin, and Betty Richardson. Team III, under Dorothy Elkin, was victorious in seven games out of nine and the members won S.H.S. monograms. Miss Eleanor Richwine was coach.

TENNIS TOURNEY

The girls' tennis tournament, sponsored by Miss Kathryn Thompson, attracted fifty girls last September. In the semi-finals, Louanna McCreary and Elizabeth Roth gained over Betty Ronk and Dorothy Elkin. In the final match Louanna McCreary, last year's runner-up, defeated Elizabeth Roth, two time winner, and won the girls' tennis championship title for 1939-40.
